

India Gives Pope Greatest Welcome

Papal News Session Held Aboard Jet

Pontiff, In Another First, Hopes Trip Aids World Peace

By EUGENE LEVIN

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Pope Paul VI held history's first papal news conference — in the air 33,000 feet above the Arabian sea — and said he hoped his trip to India would contribute to world peace.

To an Italian Communist newsman he also spoke hopefully of a "dialogue" between Roman Catholics and Communists. The Roman Catholic pontiff's news conference came Wednesday in an interlude in the Beirut-Bombay portion of his historic 4,000-mile flight from Rome to Bombay.

It was history's longest journey by a pontiff. Besides being the first papal news conference, it also produced the first airborne papal audience. And the Pope traveled as a regular ticketed first-class passenger, making it the first papal trip on public transport in the memory of Vatican experts.

Pontiff Refuses Frills

Air India arranged what it called a "flying jet carpet" treatment fit for a maharajah. But the Pope refused such frills as Russian caviar and French champagne, and showed a preference for his regular airline seat over the special bed fitted for his use.

Pope Paul rode with 19 other first-class passengers and 56 tourist-class passengers. All the first-class travelers were in his party. The others were newsmen and tourists who managed to get seats on the Boeing 707 airliner.

He tried walking through the tourist cabin on the Rome Beirut hop, but passengers surged into the aisle, blocking his way. After a few minutes, with the plane approaching Beirut, he returned to his special compartment.

After a luncheon of roast chicken, potatoes, mineral water and white wine, he made a second effort. This time passengers remained seated. He walked through, talking to each of 26 newsmen aboard and to many of the passengers.

Apostolic Audience

For passengers, it amounted to an apostolic audience, with papal aides distributing commemorative medals of the flight. For newsmen it was the first real question-and-answer period with a pontiff in Church history. "What do you expect from your trip?" one newsmen asked.

"I hope to meet many of the faithful and other men," the Pope replied. "I hope it will contribute to peace and be a witness to good will."

Antonello Trombadori, correspondent from the Italian Communist organ L'Unita told the Pope: "Bon Viaggio — good voyage — from the readers of L'Unita."

The Pope replied: "Auguri, auguri — greetings, greetings — we have many fine dialogues to make."

Pope Paul said he was enjoying the trip, and it looked like he was. His steel blue eyes were bright. He smiled and gestured frequently in benediction.

Soviets Say Mars Rocket Is Stable

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Mars rocket Zond-2 is continuing its flight and radio communication is stable, the Soviet Tass agency said Wednesday night. Earlier, Tass has said its internal power system was only half the expected level.

Tass said the spacecraft was 443,750 miles from earth over a position 128 degrees east, 5 degrees south. This would put it over Indonesia's Molucca Islands.

McCloskey Denies Kickback Deal

Ground-Breaker

President Johnson, using a historic gold-plated shovel, breaks ground for the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington yesterday. Standing beside the President is Roger L. Stevens, chairman of the board of trustees for the center. The President used the same spade which was wielded in ground-breaking ceremonies for the Jefferson and Lincoln Memorials in Washington. Peron Is Sent Back To Spain By Brazil

No Comeback For Argentine Ex-Dictator

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Brazilian authorities shipped Argentine ex-dictator Juan D. Peron back to Spain Wednesday night on the same airliner that brought him here on a frustrated comeback attempt in Latin America.

He got no nearer to Argentina than the airport here where he spent the day under armed guard before being winged back at 9:55 p.m. EST.

The governments of Brazil and neighboring nations — particularly Argentina, whose 19 million people he ruled from 1946 to 1955 — made plain they would not welcome Peron, now 69.

A wanderer in luxurious exile for nine years, Peron monopolized the first-class section of an Iberia airliner with nine companions for a transatlantic flight that ended at the Galeao International Airport here at 7:55 a.m.

The Peron party intended to remain aboard for the 1,200-mile leg to Montevideo, Uruguay, then switch to another plane for a flight to Asuncion, Paraguay. Egged on by a committee of his Argentine admirers, Peron hoped to take up residence in Asuncion, until he considered the time ripe for a crossing into Argentina.

But Brazil's government, which long ago declared Peron persona non grata, had other plans.

Air force troops surrounded Iberia's jet. A colonel said the plane would not be permitted to take off if Peron refused to leave it. Eventually Iberia announced cancellation of the rest of the flight — scheduled to chief.

Kennedy Cultural Center Is Dedicated By Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson dedicated the national cultural center Wednesday to the memory of the late John F. Kennedy — a "valiant leader who never swerved from duty."

Under cloudy skies and in freezing temperature, some 1,000 persons attended the ceremonies on the banks of the Potomac, half a mile upstream from the Lincoln Memorial and across the river from where the slain president lies buried.

Johnson and the late president's brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York, spoke briefly. Then the President lifted the first shovel of dirt, just across the road from where the $46-million John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts will rise.

"This center will have the

Bobby Baker Gives Repeat Performance

Former Senate Democratic Aide Refuses To Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Ambassador Matthew H. McCloskey denied Wednesday that he ever took part in an undercover deal to kick back $35,000 from one of his government contracts to help finance the 1960 Kennedy-Johnson campaign.

The 71-year-old retired Philadelphia contractor and Democratic fund-raiser testified before the Senate Rules Committee after Bobby Baker refused to answer any questions about political payoffs, party girls, or anything else.

Referring to testimony earlier by insurance agent Don B. Reynolds, who said he acted as "bag man" in the deal and told of a breakfast meeting at which it purportedly was set up, McCloskey said:

"That is not correct. Such a conversation never took place — at no time, ever. I never heard of it."

McCloskey said he never attended any meeting with Reynolds and Baker, as Reynolds described.

McCloskey also said he doubted he ever received a letter from Reynolds stating: "Dear Matt."

"I'd only met the fellow once or twice," McCloskey said.

A copy of a letter from Reynolds billing McCloskey for a performance bond on the contract had been placed in evidence.

Reynolds testified that another guest at the breakfast meeting in the Mayflower Hotel was former President Harry S. Truman. He said Truman was not present when the alleged political kickback plan was discussed, however.

McCloskey said he knew nothing about any such meeting attended by Truman.

Baker, the ex-page boy from Pickens, S.C., invoked the Fifth Amendment when asked about Reynolds' statement that Baker masterminded the arrangements for the alleged payoff.

To this and 45 other questions, some touchy and some apparently innocuous, Baker cited the First, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Amendments to the Constitution and said:

"I specifically decline to answer because of the privilege against self-incrimination."

It was largely a repeat of his appearance before the same committee last Feb. 25, with one exception.

This time no one raised the threat of a contempt citation when the former Senate Democratic aide repeatedly refused to become "a defendant witness in a legislative trial." Nothing ever came of the contempt talk last time.

Baker, whose legal advice again came from Edward Bennett Williams, Washington attorney, also refused to surrender papers and documents which he said he brought with him in response to a subpoena.

In a prepared statement, he said he already is being investigated by the Internal Revenue Service and the FBI.

Stanleyville Rebel Resistance Weakens

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — The government is winning back control of the desolated former rebel capital of Stanleyville with rocket attacks on rebel troops and a roundup of 10,000 Africans there in a security check, it was reported Wednesday.

A Canadian Embassy official who returned from the looted, typhoid-infested city said Cuban exiles flying T28 fighter-bombers had weakened the rebel position with repeated rocket attacks on the left bank and the surrounding area.

Government sources said Congolese army troops had arrested 170 suspected insurgents among the 10,000 checked. Those arrested were found in the African quarter where sniper fire had held the population in a grip of fear.

Thant To Hold U.N. Financial Negotiations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union discussed the U.N. financial issue in depth Wednesday, then agreed that Secretary General U Thant should conduct further negotiations among U.N. members.

In reporting this after a three-hour luncheon meeting between Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, U.S. sources showed some optimism about Soviet interest in solving the deep U.N. financial crisis.

Rusk declined comment about authoritative reports that the Russians had offered to pay some money — amount not said — into a U.N. fund.

However, Rusk said the talks had been along "constructive" lines even though the problem has not yet been solved. He indicated Thant would be dealing with it because the U.N. money question involves many members, not just the United States and the Soviet Union.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, who stayed at the Gromyko luncheon an additional half hour, said there had been "preliminary talks on all aspects of the peacekeeping problem and perhaps the secretary general will take an initiative, very soon."

Stevenson was reported to have found the session "useful" and the talks with the Russians "good."

A spokesman said no further Rusk-Gromyko talks have been scheduled. The Soviet Union is more than two years in arrears on U.N. peacekeeping assessments totaling $52.6 million. The United States says that if they remain that much behind they must lose their assembly vote under the terms of Article 19 of the U.N. Charter.

Mariner 4 Shift Set For Friday

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists will attempt the crucial midcourse maneuver Friday morning to send Mariner 4 within photograph-taking range of the mystery planet Mars, it was disclosed late Wednesday.

After a mid-afternoon conference, a spokesman for Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) said the mid-course maneuver—which will correct an error of about 140,000 miles in the trajectory of Mariner 4 — will be tried at 11 a.m. EST. Earlier, there was speculation the maneuver might come Thursday morning.

An impulse, radioed over about one million miles of space will—if all goes well—trigger a rocket motor aboard Mariner 4 to pinpoint its course to Mars.

Ringo Loses His Tonsils

LONDON (AP) — A surgeon Wednesday snipped out two bits of lymphoid tissue from Ringo Starr's anterior and posterior pillars of the fauces.

Hours later all you could get from Covent Garden 2332, a special number set up for inquiries about the condition of the Beatles drummer, was a busy signal.

However, the people who took Ringo's tonsils out said all was well, and that the 24-year-old stick man would recover to utter many another Yeah, Yeah, Yeah.

They started taking out Ringo's tonsils — the fauces is the pharynx centered between the soft palate and the base of the tongue — at 8 a.m. and the job was over and done with in an hour and a half.

People lucky enough to get through to Covent Garden 2332 heard the recorded voice of Anne Collingham, a secretarial employee of the Beatles management, assuring them that the long-nosed, gravel-voiced drummer was thriving.

The Beatles management said Ringo, taking no chances, would languish in University College Hospital for the next 10 days.

U.S. Engineer, Russian Guilty Of Espionage

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — A federal jury Wednesday found American engineer John Butenko and Russian chauffeur Igor Ivanov guilty of espionage. The verdict was returned at 10 p.m. EST.

Under the law both men could receive the death sentence. However, the minimum penalty could be probation.

Butenko, 39, of Orange, N.J., turned pale after the verdict was delivered. Ivanov, 34, a chauffeur for the Soviet trade agency of Amtorg, looked downcast.

The jury of eight women and four men was polled after the verdict at the request of defense attorney Raymond Brown and all members concurred with the guilty decision.

Ivanov was continued on $100,000 bail. Butenko was remanded without bail to the Hudson County Jail where he has been since his arrest on Oct. 29, 1963.

Butenko, a former $14,000 a year electronics engineer, was charged with three counts of espionage and Ivanov with two. They were accused of conspiring to turn over U.S. Air Force secrets to three members of the Soviet U.N. delegation.

Johnson Warns Against Bank Loan Rate Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson said Wednesday night that an increase in bank lending rates could endanger the current run of prosperity and pave the way for bigger federal deficits in the years ahead.

He urged top leaders of the business community to plan in terms of long-term benefits rather than quick profits which would benefit the economy less.

Johnson outlined his blueprint for economic progress in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Business Council, the group — which includes most of the nation's corporation presidents and board chairmen — serves as an advisory agency to the government.

The President stressed the need for a government-business partnership to continue present economic prosperity, maintain price stability, defend the dollar, and reduce the high rate of teen-age unemployment.

Johnson said he did not feel that the recent increase in the discount rate would result in higher interest charges for consumers.

"What troubles me," he said, "is the risk that a general upward movement of bank lending rates might slow down our economic advance."

"If our federal revenues slip off because the economy is running slower, the federal deficit will surely grow."

He also cautioned that under such conditions, pressure would be placed on the Congress and the President to keep federal expenditures up in every section of the country.

AMA Group Rejects Idea Of Medicare Compromise

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — merely reaffirmed the consistent Rule makers of the American Medical Association stuck by their firm opposition to Medicare, cast aside all thought of compromise, and pledged law.

They also named a new president-elect — a man who sees grams that pay for medical the AMA Medicare battle as a long-term one if it is not lost show they cannot meet the this year. He is Dr. James Z. Appel, 57, of Lancaster, Pa.

Medicare proposals — primarily the King-Anderson bill — would provide health care for all persons over 65 through Social Security. Doctors feel this would mean federal intervention in medical practice.

Most observers — including AMA President Dr. Donovan F. Ward — have taken note of increasing congressional strength for medicare's passage this in effect, the latter action year.

2.5 Million Greet Paul At Bombay

'Pilgrim Of Peace' Arrives To Attend Church Conference

BOMBAY, India (UPI) — Pope Paul VI arrived in Bombay Wednesday to the thunderous applause of 2.5 million Indians of all religions. The enthusiasm of the crowds was so great it bordered at times on pandemonium.

It was the greatest welcome Bombay — or India — had ever seen. It was greater even than the welcomes bestowed in the past on Queen Elizabeth II, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and former Soviet leaders Nikita S. Khrushchev and Nikolai Bulganin.

Pope Paul, 67, left Vatican City before sunup Wednesday and flew here to attend a Eucharistic Congress. En route he stopped for 65 minutes in Beirut, Lebanon, where thousands of Lebanese surged onto the airport to welcome him.

Added Significance

The Beirut visit to refuel his Air India plane took on added significance because of Arab hostility toward an Ecumenical Council resolution absolving Jews of total blame for the crucifixion of Christ. The pontiff appeared to take note of this when he thanked the Arab world for the enthusiasm it displayed during his visit to the Holy Land last year.

The enthusiasm with which the Pope was greeted in this land of 450 million persons where Roman Catholics make up only a small percentage of the population surprised many persons who had feared opposition from the Hindus, Moslems, Parsees and Sikhs.

Instead, great crowds gathered at the airport hours before the pontiff's plane arrived. The crowds were so dense they actually spilled onto the runways.

Longest Trip

The Pope, who arrived as a "pilgrim of peace," touched down at 5:16 p.m. (6:46 a.m. EST), 18 minutes behind schedule. His 3,849-mile flight from Rome was the longest trip ever made by a reigning pontiff. And it was the first time in the church's 2,000-year history a Pope has visited the East.

Police had expected a few thousand at the airport but more than 100,000 persons turned up. Along the 15-mile drive into town the crowds were packed 10 to 15 deep. Bombay, a city of 4.5 million, was so jammed that monstrous traffic jams developed.

Police took massive security precautions because of past threats by militant Hindu organizations to demonstrate against the papal visit. More than 15,000 policemen were assigned to the task of guarding the pontiff and only minor disturbances were reported.

Goes To Oval

Once in town the Pope went directly to the oval, a park area in central Bombay where most of the international Eucharistic Congress ceremonies are being held. His car stopped at the entrance and the Pope, wearing a red cape trimmed with ermine over his white robes, approached the altar.

More than 80,000 persons waited in the park while another 100,000 jammed the streets outside. As he entered a 500 voice choir began singing "Tu Es Petrus" — Thou Art Peter. Once the Pope stepped onto the fourth-tier podium that holds the altar, the Pope gave the benediction.

Pay Boost, Job Security To Be Sought By USW

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Greater job security, increased wages and greater employment loom as key demands of the United Steelworkers, AFL-CIO, in forthcoming contract talks with the basic steel industry.

The 33-man executive board of the USW drafted these and other recommendations during a private two-hour meeting Wednesday. The Associated Press learned. Other recommendations included:

Added protection for senior workers when industry introduces new equipment; retirement earlier than the present 65 years of age; improved grievance procedures with local unions given the right to strike should there be no improvement; provisions against "arbitrary disciplinary action in the name of safety," and improved medical and life insurance plans.

The draft was presented later in the day to the union's powerful international wage policy committee. This 163-member committee has final say on contract matters.

David J. McDonald, USW president, declined to give any hint of the union's demands at a news conference following the executive board meeting.

Ether-Soaked Glove Rapist Sentenced

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP) — A German worker was sentenced to 10 years in prison at hard labor Wednesday for raping six women whom he had anesthetized with an ether-soaked glove.

The court said Georg Rotschka, 34, assaulted his prey in dark alleys of suburban settlements and clamped his gloved left hand over the victim's face. He raped his victims while they were unconscious, the court said.

State Agencies Ask 20% More

BALTIMORE (AP) — The heads of state agencies want $60.7 million additional for the next fiscal year. Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein doubts seriously they'll get it.

The Budget Bureau reported Wednesday that virtually all requests for money for the next fiscal year starting July 1 have been received.

And they total $367.7 million which is nearly 20 per cent more than appropriated for current operations. In addition, some agencies receive federal aid.

The requested amount in additional state aid is double what Goldstein said previously could be granted without increasing taxes. He remained confident about holding the line.

"We always have larger requests, but they are never left at the original request," Goldstein said.

"The governor and the budget bureau will cut back requests before submitting their budget and then the legislature gets a whack at it."

Law Application Debated In Church College Case

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Disagreement over the constitutional test to be applied broke out Wednesday between opposing lawyers in a case in which aid to four church-affiliated colleges in Maryland is being challenged.

Melvin J. Sykes, attorney for 12 Maryland residents who filed the suit, told the court that he interpreted several decisions of the Supreme Court on church-state relations to mean that states may not contribute funds to finance any religious institutions or religious activity.

His statement was prompted by a remark from Judge O. Bowie Duckett that he must decide the constitutionality of the Maryland law on "whether it advances or prohibits a particular religious faith."

Sykes told Duckett that his interpretation did not apply to direct financial grants, but only to such things as bus transportation intended to show the relationship between Hood and Western Maryland colleges and the religious bodies with which they are affiliated.

However, William L. Marbury, lawyer for three of the four colleges, disputed Sykes' interpretation, which he said had come from minority opinions of the Supreme Court.

Involved in the case being argued in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court are four grants totaling $2.5 million approved by the Maryland General Assembly for the College of Notre Dame and St. Joseph's College, both Catholic institutions; Hood College, affiliated with the United Church of Christ, and Western Maryland College, a Methodist school.

The money, which was intended for construction of science, dormitory and dining facilities, was held up by the state after the suit was filed.

Most of Wednesday, the third day of the trial, was spent in reading into the record information intended to show the relationship between Hood and Western Maryland colleges and the religious bodies with which they are affiliated.

'Coons Blamed By Defendants

BALTIMORE (AP)—Raccoons were named as the culprits who carried a handful of corn in front of a duck shooting blind at the trial Wednesday of three Anne Arundel County officials.

Hunting over bait is a federal offense.

Accused are Lee F. Sosnowski, 42, county administrator of public works; Nathan Stinchcomb, 39, a police captain; and Edward A. Praley, 39, a police lieutenant.

Also on trial with them before U. S. District Judge Harrison L. Winter and a jury is Bruce Towers, 34, a hunting guide from Federalsburg.

They are charged with illegally hunting over bait at Island Creek in Talbot County Nov. 12 of last year.

Thomas Hunter Lowe, defense lawyer and Democratic state delegate from Talbot, said only one handful of corn was found in front of the blind while 80 acres were behind it legally. Lowe said footprints of raccoons abounded near the blind.

Barry Hopes To Meet With Ike, Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater took aim Wednesday at restoring peace and unity to the Republican party — and as an initial move disclosed plans to meet soon with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Richard M. Nixon.

He said in an interview he hopes the summit session, which he called a "general discussion," could be worked into the schedules of the former president and vice president before he returns to Arizona next week.

Goldwater, the defeated GOP presidential nominee, said he didn't know where the meeting would lead in setting the party's future course but indicated he is willing to cooperate in welding together quarreling GOP factions. In another move pointing toward cohesion he made it clear he would encourage formation of an advisory council to bring all segments of the Republican party into formation of policy — a proposal suggested by some GOP governors.

Storm Perils Five Vessels

HALIFAX, N.S. (AP) — At least five vessels were in distress and two fishermen were missing Wednesday night as high winds and mountainous seas buffeted the coast of the Maritime provinces.

Capt. George Pateras and his 17-man Greek crew of the 2,828-ton Liberian ship Fury escaped death when their ship was driven aground Tuesday at Barachois Point 95 miles east of Halifax.

The crew scrambled ashore Wednesday when the vessel grounded at low tide. Pateras said the ship was likely to be a total loss.

He then continued to the house of Valerian Cardinal Gracias, archbishop of Bombay, where he will stay. The Pope will stay in the cardinal's quarters, three large rooms which are austere but comfortable with a private chapel to one side.

Late in the evening, the pontiff received Indian government leaders, including Shastri and Hussain at the archbishop's palace. He said he had heard 12 persons had been arrested for planning demonstrations and asked, "May we request that they be released?"

Shastri told Pope Paul they had been freed.

Baltimore Man Charged With Arson And Murder

BALTIMORE (AP) — Kenneth A. Smith, 38, was charged by the grand jury Wednesday with arson and murder of seven of his children.

The children died in a fire in their row house Tuesday.

In speedy action, prosecutors skipped the usual arraignment in lower Municipal Court and sought the indictment directly from the circuit court grand jury.

It was returned after six policemen, Smith's wife and one of his sons who escaped from his blazing house appeared before the jurors.

Smith is scheduled to enter a plea to the charges in criminal court next Monday.

Police arrested Smith about five hours after a fire swept through a row house in which 11 of his children were sleeping near dawn Tuesday.

Four girls and three boys ranging in age from one to 13 died of carbon monoxide poisoning from inhaling the smoke.

Two Injured When Scaffold Falls 30 Feet

LEVEL, Md. (AP)—Two men were hurt, one critically, when a scaffold gave way about 30 feet from the bottom of a shaft at a water line construction project near here Wednesday.

Blake E. Dickerson, an inspector employed by the Baltimore City Water Department, was listed in critical condition. He was admitted to Harford Memorial Hospital at Havre de Grace, but was later transferred to Mercy Hospital in Baltimore.

John Kenneth Pachmayr of Baltimore, a structural iron worker, suffered a broken ankle and was admitted to Harford Memorial.

Dickerson and Pachmayr fell to the concrete base of the shaft when a rope broke, releasing the scaffold platform.

The shaft, on Rock Run Road off Maryland 161 in Harford County, is part of the construction of a water line from the Susquehanna River to Baltimore.

Hagerstown Still Plaintiff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hagerstown, Md., remained a plaintiff Wednesday in a damage suit against three manufacturers of electrical equipment, despite Tuesday's announcement that an out-of-court settlement had been reached.

Mayor Winslow Burnhans announced Tuesday that the city had agreed to a $440,000 settlement of its damage suit, one of hundreds brought against electrical equipment manufacturers convicted on price-fixing charges in 1961.

Elmer Bennett, one of the attorneys representing Hagerstown at the trial in U.S. District Court, said the city will not withdraw formally from the court case until it actually receives the settlement.

Hagerstown, the state of Maryland, and Burlington, Vt., are seeking damages in the court suit from the General Electric Co., the Westinghouse Electric Corp., and the Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Co.

The plaintiffs charge the three manufacturers conspired to rig prices submitted to them on turbine generators between 1950 and 1960.

Spies Arrested

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI)—Three persons with access to classified information have been arrested on spy charges, it was announced Wednesday.

The country they allegedly worked for was not named but one of the prisoners was identified as Sanom Wonthong, a clerk in Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn's office.

The other two were identified as Prasert Undentung, a messenger in Thailand's interior ministry, and Michael Lapas, a half-Thai, half-French Eurasian employed by the French embassy.

An Agriculture Department study has disclosed 51 million acres of land now devoted to crops should be converted to other uses.

Surgical Team Unreels 20-Foot Python, Lances Infected Jaw

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — An eight-man surgical team assembled outside the reptile house, The Baltimore Zoo's consulting veterinarian was there, complete with a tray of instruments.

Rickey had what the doctor called a necrophorous infection near the tooth in the right side of the upper jaw. Rickey hadn't eaten since Oct. 5, passing up the November ration of a live pig.

That's a long time between meals, even for a 20-foot python. So it was decided to operate, to lance the egg-size infection and give Rickey relief.

The nation has 250 ships, 100 submarines and 750 aircraft assigned to anti-submarine warfare. More than 85,000 persons are involved in the mission.

The snake's mouth open with a three feet back from Rickey's cage and was all coiled up again gaping mouth. The operation when the surgical team left was over. The doctor called it a success.

It was done. The doctor was moved swiftly, swab in one gloved hand, syringe in the other. He lanced the infection, swabbed it and injected a dose of antibiotics.

He took a step backward, reloaded the syringe and plunged the needle into a muscle about an inch from the jaw.

Rickey was coiled up, playing possum, so to speak. Frank Groves, the head reptile keeper, dropped a burlap sack over Rickey's head. Two others set upon Rickey, grabbing the tail.

The patient resisted, squirmed and wriggled, but the men held on. Rickey was reeled out of the cage, hose-like. It was up to the smallest of the surgical team, Robert Hill, to do the next delicate job — prop

More Reading Is Reflected In Better Writing

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — One of the big reasons why students can't write well, either in high school or college, is that they don't read enough, says Prof. James Squire of the University of Illinois.

"If you don't have ideas coming in, you can't have ideas coming out," Squire said in an interview. "A regular program of reading is essential for anyone who wants to write well."

Squire spoke out during the annual convention here last week of the National Council of Teachers of English. He is the council's executive secretary. "Extensive reading builds a student's vocabulary," he said. "It introduces him to new patterns of writing. It helps him to acquire new ideas and background for his writing. He learns the vast number of ways you can use the English sentence in expressing thought."

If this is what's needed, how well is the need being met?

Not very well, most college professors will tell you.

Obviously, the situation varies from college to college. But Prof. Harris Wilson of the University of Illinois says, "with many college freshmen, you have to assume that they never in their lives read a book for pleasure."

Squire said high schools and junior highs should spend much more class time in reading than they do now.

Squire said it is ridiculous to expect pupils to express their own ideas in writing if they have not been exposed, through reading, to the way other people express theirs.

This is especially true in the education of disadvantaged children from the slums, Squire said.

"If we want to help slum children to a better use of expression," he said, "we must expose them to how other people use the language, use it in ways they never see or hear in their home environment."

Parents should do all they can to encourage the youngster to read outside of school, Squire said. But he acknowledged that parents of younger pupils have a difficult problem.

"Parents simply can't get their hands on good books for the grades through junior high," he said.

"If you look for books for young readers in most department stores you will find many of the series books — 'The Hardy Boys,' 'The Happy Hollisters,' 'Tom Swift,' 'The Bobsey Twins,' and 'oe like."

"There are good juvenile books available, but they're hard to find, and parents just don't know enough about them or where to find them."

The situation is much better at the high school level, Squire said, because the students are starting to dip into adult reading, so easily available in paperback. But the big problem is getting high school youngsters to read.

Gen. Lemnitzer Warns Against Defense Letup

PARIS (UPI) — U.S. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Allied supreme commander, Tuesday warned the West against relaxing military defenses while the threat posed by the Soviet Union and its satellites remained.

He said it would be the "height of folly" if the Allied military effort was relaxed because of complacency.

Lemnitzer told a session of the Western European Union (WEU) that it is disturbing that some members of the Atlantic Alliance are failing to meet their force goals and are cutting terms for compulsory military service.

Observers said it was an apparent reference to Britain's under-strength army of the Rhine.

"It would be the height of irony if Allied command Europe's past successes in deterring war were to bring about a sense of complacency regarding the continued threat posed by the Soviet bloc to the NATO allies," Lemnitzer said.

"It would be the height of folly if such complacency were to lead to a relaxation of the Allied military effort while the military capability underlying and giving force to that threat persists."

Lemnitzer spoke during debate on defense and European security at the assembly, comprised of parliament members from Britain and the six European Common Market nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Soviet May Revamp 'K's' New Look For Industry

MOSCOW (UPI) — Nikita S. Khrushchev's dramatic 1957 "new look" for Soviet industry may be revamped, the Kremlin indicated Tuesday.

Criticism of the former premier's nationwide decentralization scheme of nearly 100 economic councils appeared in the Communist newspaper Pravda Tuesday, a telltale sign of a likely institutional shakeup.

Western observers said such a move, perhaps involving a consolidation of some of the councils or reorganization of some industries on a national level, may be instituted at the Dec. 9 session of the nation's parliament, the Supreme Soviet. Revamping the industrial system would be among the most significant in the series of changes enacted since Oct. 14 when Khrushchev's 11-year reign ended with the succession of party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Give Your Personal Touch For Christmas

Nothing takes the place of the personal touch. Especially at Christmas, when cards roll in by the mail-sack loads and everyone receives more gifts than at any other time of year. The standouts are the cards which include bright little handwritten notes, and the gayly wrapped gifts that really are just what the giver found out you wanted.

Do your Christmas shopping early, but do your Christmas sleuthing earlier still. Sit down right now and make a list of those you will seek gifts for and see how many good ideas you have. Try to remember what each person expressed a wish for — something of yours that was admired that you might duplicate, an eye-catcher in a store window as you both passed by, an item you noticed was lacking or would be much enjoyed. For those names with blanks after them, set yourself the task of tracking down clues. This will make all the difference between giving a gift just to be giving something and showing that you remember and gave special thought to the individual. It will make even the smallest token a delight to receive.

It's not a day too early to start writing special greetings and bits of news on your Christmas cards or on note-paper to fit into the envelope with them. This is time-consuming but you know how rewarding it is when you think of the pleasure you take in cards that go so much farther than mere printed words. Don't risk omitting your own personal notes by letting time creep up too fast.

And learn to be a gifted gift-wraper. There's a lot to the theory of the importance of anticipation, and you can proffer the package that's almost too pretty to open to make the gift more fun. There are books and booklets on how to handle the paper properly and make beautiful bows, and sometimes stores have experts to teach you and to provide new ideas. The

Handy Spot For Towel

One way to start the day wrong is to step out of the shower and find all the clean towels are in the hall closet. The logical place for the towel supply is right in the bathroom. If your bathroom lacks towel storage space, install ceramic tile shelves or cabinets to match the tile of your floors and walls. Your towels will stay fresher and cleaner, and your supply will always be right at hand.

BETTER FIGURE CONTROL can be yours if you know how to calculate your ideal weight. Send for John Robert Powers' figure - figuring pamphlet, "How Much Should You Weigh?" to start your "idealizing" program. Send 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mr. Powers in care of this newspaper. Your copy will arrive in two weeks.

Committee Activities Discussed

The Home Life Committee of the Woman's Civic Club formulated plans for various activities, when entertained by Mrs. Ernest A. Lindsay, chairman, at a luncheon. It was held at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club.

The committee formulated plans for the club's annual Christmas luncheon to be held at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club on December 17 at 12:30 p. m. In addition to the general arrangements, the group will also serve as hostesses for the luncheon. Plans also were made for the general meeting, March 18 which will be in charge of the home life committee followed by a tea. The theme of the program will be, "Yesterday's Treasure-Today's Pleasure". The group will also hold a "Card Party Luncheon" with the art group of the club on April 22nd.

Members of the committee attending were, Mrs. F. Lee Fresh; Mrs. Karl W. Bachman; Mrs. W. A. McGraw; Mrs. Coit M. Speicher; Mrs. Luther Hutter, Sr.; and Mrs. W. I. Burton. Guests were Mrs. T. Cass Dye, club president and Mrs. W. Elmo Channell, vice president and program chairman.

Party Tonight

Members of the Women's Sport Club will bring donations for a needy family and a jingle gift to the annual Christmas party and dinner to be held tonight at the Cumberland Country Club, beginning at 6:30.

Mrs. Madelyn Rizer is chairman, assisted by Miss Marguerite Mullan, Mrs. Mary Humbertson, Mrs. Martha McNeil and Mrs. Emma Crawford.

LPN To Meet

The Allegany-Garrett County Licensed Practical Nurses, District 1, will hold its annual Christmas dinner and jingle party December 10. It will be at Barton's Restaurant, McMullen Highway, at 7:30. Secret pals will be revealed.

Mrs. Helen K. Crowe will conduct a brief business session. All members are asked to attend.

Opening lead: Four of ♠
The auction provided declarer with a clew as to the successful mapping of a campaign to fulfill his contract of three no trump.

North opened the bidding with one club and East, who was reasonably well-heeled in the other suits, made a take-out double. South redoubled inasmuch as he had a full opening bid himself. West's call of one spade does not designate any special high card strength, but merely suggests the best haven to partner. South's jump to two no trump is, of course, forcing to game and describes a balanced hand with adequate protection in the adverse suit. North dutifully carried on to game.

West opened the four of spades and East put up the king — forcing out declarer's ace. A diamond was led to the dummy's queen and East was in with the ace. He returned the nine of spades to drive out South's remaining stopper.

On the next round of diamonds, West showed out revealing that East held a second stopper in the suit. Declarer's only chance now was the club finesse, so he returned to his hand with the jack of diamonds in order to put the queen of clubs thru. East won the trick with the king, cashed the ten of diamonds, and returned a spade—enabling West to take three more tricks and set declarer down by two.

South did not take adequate measures to protect himself against the unfavorable break in diamonds. Inasmuch as East is marked with the diamond ace by virtue of his take-out double, declarer should arrange to make his initial play in the suit toward the closed hand in order to protect his high cards.

Observe the effect if South crosses to dummy, with the king of hearts at trick two and leads the five of diamonds. If East puts up the ace, he will establish four tricks in the suit for declarer—sufficient for his contract (four diamonds, two spades, two hearts, and one club). If East ducks the diamond lead, South now has a diamond trick in and can afford to shift his attentions to the club suit. Altho the finesse loses, declarer has his nine tricks established—two spades, two hearts, one diamond, and four clubs—before he surrenders control of the proceedings.

Entertaining Tip

Here's a tip on how to get holiday entertaining off to a good start: surprise your guests with a hospitality table just inside the door. If the table is surfaced with ceramic tile you can load it with snacks, beverages and holiday goodies without fear of damage, because tile is completely immune to usual household wear and tear.

Color Choice

At first sight many homemakers prefer bright, dominant colors. But living with color year in and year out is a different story. A strong color is almost sure to grow tiresome over the years. That's why many ceramic tile colors are pastels—over the years they're more pleasant to live with.

LaSalle Mothers Festival To Be Held Sunday

A "Holiday Festival" will be a feature during the LaSalle Mothers Club annual dinner, to be held Sunday. It will be in St. Mary's hall from 2 until 7 o'clock. Besides the games booths, and surprise basket, there will be a sweet shop and Christmas gift shop.

The dining room is being decorated in the Christmas theme and will be repeated in the music played throughout the afternoon.

Officers will be in charge of the booths, assisted by members and their husbands.

General chairman for the dinner is Mrs. Calvin Hudson, assisted by Mrs. Alfred Fairall and Mrs. Paul Schwenninger. Other chairmen are Mrs. John McLean, Mrs. Frank Gobeil, Mrs. Melvin Brehm, Mrs. Ambrose McKenzie, Mrs. Edward Burke.

Edward Burke will be in charge of the game booth, with Jack Pisarcik, Donald Smith and Chauncey Friend assisting.

VISITOR—Mrs. Marjorie W. Simpson, Portland, Ore., supreme queen of the Daughters of the Nile will visit here tomorrow. Re Temple, city, and Dorcas Temple, Altoona, are cosponsoring a "ceremonial of inspection." The official visit will be at 2 at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club, followed by a dinner at 6:30 in honor of Mrs. Simpson. Mrs. Laura Murray and Mrs. Vonda Houser will preside.

Ann Landers... Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week the woman next door told me (literally over the back fence) she was sure the couple next door is not married. She said, "I happen to know his first wife would not give him a divorce."

The couple under discussion has young children. They are pleasant and they mind their own business. When the gossip asked if I thought she should demand to see their marriage license "to put an end to all the talk," I told her this was not a police state and to forget it. She shot back: "I can show you MY marriage license. Can you show me yours?"

I said "I don't know where my marriage license is and even if I did I'd be darned if I'd show it to anyone unless it was demanded by a court."

my husband and I weren't married and maybe I'd better find the license to clear my name. She claims people who have nothing to hide don't resent being asked for proof. Express yourself on this please.—BURNING

DEAR BURNING: In America a person is innocent until proven guilty. If anyone asked ME to produce my marriage license (and I know precisely where it is) I'd tell them to go take a long walk on a short dock.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What is wrong with a wife who would not recognize apple pie in a cafeteria?

Myrtle is 58, a school teacher and intelligent. Last night we were having dinner out. Myrtle pointed to a slice of apple pie and asked, "What kind is that?" The young man replied, "That's apple, Lady." Myrtle answered, "Oh, I thought it was peach." The young man looked at her and said, "I thought everybody knew what apple pie looked like."

Myrtle gave him a icy stare and replied, "Thank you, I'll take cherry." All the while she was holding up the line. I'd like your opinion.—L. L. FROM ATLANTA

DEAR L. L.: My opinion is that I can't imagine anything about which an opinion mattered less.

I am printing your letter to show a few million readers what SOME people consider a problem.

Did it ever occur to you that Myrtle's eyesight isn't as good as it used to be? Now — do you want to take her out and shoot her?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd appreciate it if you'd print this letter for all 14 1/2-year-old girls to see.

I want to say how thankful I am that my parents didn't let me do all the things I wanted to do when I was 11. In the 8th grade I wanted heels and nylons, lipstick and the whole bit. I didn't see why I couldn't go to boy-girl parties. I was big for my age and thought I was mature.

When my parents said "no," I was sure they were old-fashioned and mean besides. I told them their ancient ideas were ruining my life.

I'm getting these privileges this year and I really appreciate them now. I want to say to my Mom and Dad: "Thanks for a job well done."—GRATEFUL DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: The job isn't DONE yet — but, thank goodness, you're well on the way. Write to me on your 21st birthday.

ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," gives sound and solid rules for teenage dating. To receive a copy, enclose with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Instructor Reveals Ike Shot Golf In 80s

By PATRICK J. SLOYAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two persons were in position to tell Dwight D. Eisenhower what to do while he was President of the United States:

His wife, Mamie.
His golf instructor, Norman Palmer.

But Palmer couldn't tell him much. In now-it-can-be-told fashion, Palmer reveals one of the best kept secrets — Eisenhower golfed in the 80's.

"Mr. Eisenhower had good technique, so my efforts were aimed at helping him polish some of the fine points of his game," Palmer wrote.

In his book, "Five Star Golf," published this month (By Duell Sloan & Pearce), Palmer tells how Eisenhower escaped or, if forced, conducted world affairs on fairways and greens.

While the professional at Newport Country Club, Palmer coached and played daily with Eisenhower when the vacation White House was located in that Rhode Island resort town during the summers of 1957 and 1958.

"Golf takes my mind off everything else for a few hours," Palmer quotes Eisenhower as saying. "You think only of golf while you are playing. Otherwise, you can't play good golf."

Eisenhower shot an 82 — his best at the 72-par course — the day before his trusted aide, Sherman Adams, was forced to resign under pressure.

Press secretary James Hagerty came tearing out on the course one day in a radio-equipped golf cart. Eisenhower holed out before walking up to Hagerty and getting the latest on the Little Rock, Ark., school integration crisis.

He dictated a telegram to Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus and then teed off.

Palmer found it difficult at first to adjust playing with the President. Upsetting were fears of a sniper lurking in the rough despite Secret Service agents carrying machine guns and carbines along with one club in their bags.

For someone pushing 70, Eisenhower amazed Palmer with drives consistently dropping more than 200 yards.

"Mr. Eisenhower probably had the most trouble with his short irons. Frequently he would shut the club face on the ball with his hand action and he would also hit behind the ball a little too much," Palmer said. He ignored the long irons, trusting the job to his five wood.

"He'd take it out in spots where I never would have considered using it. Nine chances out of ten, he'd get a great shot," Palmer said. His chipping was deadly and putting — while erratic — sure.

N.Y. Legislature To Convene Dec. 15

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller Tuesday summoned the New York state legislature into special session Dec. 15 to enact a reapportionment plan meeting the U.S. Supreme Court's "one-man, one-vote" edict.

Republicans will control the session. Democrats, who will take command of the legislature next month, promptly denounced the Republican governor's call as "a new low in political cynicism."

Civilian employment in the Defense Department is expected to decrease by 10,000 this year and by 17,000 in 1965, according to the President's budget estimates.

More than 2.5 million workers are employed in the automobile industry, with about 700,000 engaged in the manufacturing process.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORAMCK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Should high school bosses blow the whistle on the accent on varsity sports?

"Yes," urged the majority of school administrators participating in a poll sponsored by "The Nation's Schools," a journal for educators.

The administrators calling for a soft-pedal on varsity athletics maintain that such sports get the spotlight too much and too often.

"Play down the importance of high school varsity athletics," the administrators said. "Play up the need for a well-rounded physical education program for everybody."

The schoolmen were cool toward organized athletic competition among elementary school children — such as little league baseball.

Sixty-two per cent of those polled mixed competitive sports for younger children. This represented a shift in opinion from five years ago when 50 per cent participating in a similar poll favored organized sports for elementary school children.

The poll, based on a four per cent proportional sampling of 18,000 school administrators in 50 states, drew comments giving parents the blame for over-emphasis on athletics.

Several schoolmen told how they'd handle things if given the chance. For example: —"Keep parents out of doing the coaching and running the show," an Idaho administrator suggested.

—"Either don't let parents see the (little league) games, or establish an educational program that teaches them how to act," a Texan urged.

—"The tendency for adults to dictate academic policy to fit athletic endeavor can become too great," a Minnesota schoolman said. "This affects employment of faculty personnel because judgments are determined by emotional rather than objective evaluations."

"Physical fitness for all students should be the major objective rather than competitive sports for the few," a Pennsylvania educator protested.

Among the educators defending organized sports was a Michigan schoolman who contended that "identification is important to high school boys and girls."

Queen Elizabeth II Likes To 'Peek' For Yule Gifts

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth II likes to have what she calls "a really good peek" around everything on the one time a year when she goes shopping—for Christmas presents.

Court etiquette prevents her from going out to buy anything except Christmas gifts. Everything else is sent to the palace for her to choose from.

So the queen always looks forward eagerly to her annual expedition to a famous store (Harrods) in the London district of Knightsbridge, near Buckingham Palace, for the pleasure which other women take as a matter of course.

She writes her gift list well in advance, makes secret inquiries as to tastes, and adds Prince Philip's gifts to her own.

Her lady-in-waiting telephones the store manager to say when she is arriving. "No publicity, please," is the strict rule. On Christmas the newspapers described the toys the queen had bought. Her eldest children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, discovered what they were to receive a few weeks in advance.

Wife Preservers

Freshen wilted root vegetables by placing in salted ice water.

This year the queen has a special gift for them. She is having a "teen-age rum-pus room" made in the Victoria Tower of Windsor Castle, which the royal family uses as a weekend home. The sound-proof room will have television, hi-fi equipment, a tape recorder and rugs that can be removed for dancing sessions.

It is due to be inaugurated formally with a teen-age cocktail party when Prince Charles, 16, and Princess Anne, 14, arrive home for the holidays from Gordonstoun and Benenden Schools, respectively.

Normally the queen has a big house party at her country home at Sandringham during Christmas but this year renovations are in process there, so the royal family will spend Christmas at Windsor.

It is celebrated in the traditional English manner, with a Yule log burning in the hearth and the rooms decorated with holly, mistletoe and pale Christmas roses.

Dinner is the same every year—roast turkey with sausages and chestnut stuffing, sprouts and carrots, followed by hot mince pie and the plum-filled Christmas pudding ceremoniously carried in on a great silver dish with flaming brandy poured on it.

Early Dinner Hour There's fruit, candy and crackers, which are pulled. The hats they contain are put on by everybody.

The Christmas dinner is served at 1:30 p.m. instead of in the evening so all the children over seven can be present. Those under that age eat upstairs in the nursery suite, but come down during the afternoon for the children's party.

The brilliantly decorated and illuminated Christmas tree is ceremoniously revealed at dusk in the ballroom when the double doors are flung open. There is a gift from everyone in the building.

The queen distributes the packages, such things as clocks or china for her staff and servants, puzzles and jokes for the royal family. They exchange their personal gifts on Christmas Eve, just before carol singers come into the hall to sing the Christmas hymns. The queen and all the royal family join in.

On Christmas morning everyone attends church and Prince Philip customarily reads the Scripture lesson.

Santa's Toy Pack Grows Bigger And Bigger Each Year In U.S.

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bulge in Santa's pack grows bigger every year in dollars and cents. This year keeps the pace, with predictions that total toy sales will set another record.

The Toy Manufacturers of the U.S.A., Inc., reported that sales for the first three quarters of 1964 were running 4.6 per cent ahead of the same period in 1963. And in 1963, toy sales—reached $1.141 billion for the biggest year up to that time in U.S. toy history.

L. John Swedlin, president of the manufacturers' group, predicted 1964 would top all other years when the final tallies are in. But he didn't want to speculate by how much.

Swedlin gave reasons for the optimistic picture—"There are more children around to buy toys for, and more money to buy toys with."

Swedlin said, "there has been no major catastrophe as there was last year before the holidays. People are just in a better spending frame of mind."

What about trends in toys? Well, everything goes, from a toy gun called a one-man army (it performs as seven different play weapons) to a French guillotine complete with knife (this is play?) to the more standard games, dolls and wheel goods.

Frank Gavitt, at the Toy Information Bureau, a service of the manufacturers, put together, however, a list of the most numerous toys on the market for the holidays.

With the greatest number of toys in the top category, Gavitt's list went this way:

Autos and trucks, dolls, preschool games, doll toys, military toys, art toys, kits, mechanical toys, animal toys, monster toys, wheel toys, construction toys, car racing sets, and planes.

Gavitt also cited a list, selected by a "jury" of 12 experienced toy buyers, of the toys apt to be most popular this year.

These were toys the buyers felt would show the greatest sales gain and the list went: educational toys, military, hobby, auto racing sets, wheel toys and games.

Military, Monster Toys

Military toys long have enjoyed popularity and this year's children will be receiving such things as grenades that explode, rapid fire galling guns, guerrilla scatter guns, to name a few. There also are clothes to make the pint-sized private look like the war hero of his dreams.

In the monster toys about to be unleashed on the youngsters there are exact replicas of the grotesque creatures who inhabit television shows, plus a group of giant insects who the maker said are "guaranteed to make the whole family squeal with pretended terror come Christmas dawn."

Dolls are of course the Christmas perennial, but this year added to the list are the moppet replicas of the Beatles. Add to other dolls which copy human behavior a new one called Weepee Wiggles, who squirms and cries as she takes her bottle, and Baby Doolkins, so flexible of joint she can assume or hold almost any position her play mother can dream up.

But the more prosaic playthings still are around—some of them getting old in years although still young in heart. There's the Teddy Bear who long since has passed his 50th year.

And, celebrating their 50th birthdays this year are Tinkertoys and Raggedy Ann, the oldest doll in toyland.

Goucher Plans Drive For More Negro Students

BALTIMORE (AP) — The president of Goucher College said Tuesday it will begin a drive this month to recruit students from poor neighborhoods throughout the country and expects to get more Negroes.

Dr. Otto F. Kraushaar, president of the college in suburban Towson, said in an interview major efforts in the drive would be directed toward Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia.

Although the first Negro entered Goucher 10 years ago and the undergraduate enrollment of about 950 now includes five Negroes, there are none in the 1964 freshman class for the first time in a decade, he said.

Kraushaar said the recruiting drive would be intended "not just for Negroes but for disadvantaged students."

"We would expect to get more Negroes," he added.

He said scholarships are now used by about 21 to 24 per cent of the student body.

He attributed the absence of Negro freshmen this year to chance and said Negro applicants for admission next year already are more numerous and better qualified than those received last year for the 1964-65 academic year.

Here's How To Put A Pup Or Kitten Under The Yule Tree

CHICAGO (UPI) — Give a Christmas present that moves for the pet you want? How much should you pay? How can you tell if a puppy or kitten is healthy?

Put a pup or a kitten under the tree.

If you've decided that this is the Yuletide your children deserve either, you're probably reading the "pets for sale" ads with interest and bewilderment.

Where do you begin looking for the pet you want? How much should you pay? How can you tell if a puppy or kitten is healthy?

To help you in your search for a four-footed present, here are some suggestions from the experts at Pet Food Institute.

—Begin your search by asking friends who own pets, or a veterinarian, to recommend a kennel, pet shop or animal shelter. Don't be afraid to ask questions, especially about prices. Most people who sell pets are sincerely interested in finding good homes for them, so don't be surprised if they ask you a few questions, too.

—When you visit places recommended to you, let your eyes and nose—as well as your heart—help make your decision.

—How can you judge a puppy's or kitten's health? First, notice if it acts alert and friendly. Next, look at its feeding bowls if it contains fresh food and the water dishes look as if they are scrubbed often. Observe how the owner handles his stock. A picky up a healthy baby animal, its body feels well-rounded and checked immediately by a veterinarian. Most reputable pet dealers will replace an animal new no sign of a runny discharge if some defect is discovered with a day or two.

Union Army Band Leader Described Sherman's Famous March In Letter Home

By MERTON T. AKERS

United Press International

This is what Sherman's March Through Georgia was like as reported by a Union soldier who made it:

"A tornado 60 miles in width from Chattanooga (Tenn.) to this place (Savannah, Ga.) 290 miles could not have done half the damage we did."

"All the R. Roads in the state are torn up and the whole tract of country over which we passed is little better than a wilderness."

"I can't for the life of me think what the people that are left there are to live on."

"We have all our cattle, hens, mules, sheep, hogs, sweet potatoes and molasses and nearly everything else."

"We burnt all the cotton we met which was millions of pounds."

"Our teams with all their hard driving are better today by 200 per cent than they were when we started because we have more than 2-3 new mules besides all the old ones we could bring with us. Those that couldn't travel were killed and the road is lined with those that died."

Letter Home

Those are excerpts from a letter written on Dec. 18, 1864, by William F. Saylor, leader of the First Brigade band of the Third Division of the XX Corps, one of the four corps which made the historic march. The letter was written to Saylor's father, the Rev. Jacob Saylor of Naperville, Ill. (A copy of the letter was made available to United Press International by Mrs. L.C. Derrick of Green Bay, Wis., a niece of William Saylor. The original is in the Wisconsin State Historical Society.)

Before Saylor's outfit started the march they destroyed a railroad bridge across the Chattahoochee River eight miles north of Atlanta. The bridge was 360 feet long and 100 feet above the water, built of trestle work.

"On Saturday Nov. 12th our forces commenced destroying either because they had relatives behind the Iron Curtain or we pulled down the bridge," were foreign-born, or for both Saylor wrote. "This was done reasons."

by cutting all the braces and digging away about 20 feet of track from the ends, then fastening a long rope to it and five or six hundred men pulling on it endwise. After two or three pulls it commenced swaying to and fro and soon about one-half of this massive structure went crashing to the bottom of the stream. The workmen now went to the other side and went through the same operation and in one day from of the time they commenced cutting the braces the whole structure that had cost us months to build was a pile of ruins."

March Begins

Saylor's unit began the march toward the sea on the 14th.

"We had on our backs and in our haversacks each, 1 tent, 1 wool blanket, 1 rubber poncho, side and went through the same an extra pair of shoes, 1 pair of drawers, 1 shirt and other little trinkets, and three days of the 105th Ill. found ex-shooter) and kept a good look there to camp about 7 miles. I

Gov. (Herschel V.) Johnston's belly each and ten days rations of coffee & sugar and a little pepper and salt, a knife fork, spoon, 1 tin plate and our horns."

"I was allowed to send out two foragers each day for the bands. These would go ahead some distance and get what they could and bring it to the road and then wait until we came up and from there, we would carry what they had got to camp. Today (Nov. 17) they got fresh pork and yams but we had to carry them about 3½ miles. The way we managed the pork was to catch a hog, kill him and cut off what we wanted, probably the hams, hair and all, let the balance When we got to camp, we skinned and divided it."

On Nov. 19 "my foragers did not find anything so we had a supper of hardtack. It rained all night. I got drenched to the skin and had diarrhea (diarrhea)."

Pillage And Plunder

By Nov. 23 they were in Milledgeville, the Georgia capital.

"This is a very pretty place and contains some beautiful buildings. The Legislature (legislature) had been in session but on hearing of our approach they adjourned and fled in confusion to the four winds of earth. A great many of the inhabitants had left when we got there and the town looked desolate. We burned the ger and a horse with me and State Prison and the arsenal was just loading the stuff when other public buildings and some of the regimental foragers pillaged and plundered the town came running in and said the generally. It was an awful look. Rebels were after them."

Fashion Advice

United Press International

Don't take too much fashion advice, especially from friends, says California designer Don Loper. You lose your point of view and become a conglomerate of opinions, most of which probably are unsuitable to you.

Find a style that suits you and then stay with it, Loper urges.

Shoes that punctuate the point of fashion for spring are the softest, tenderest shapes in a decade, reports the National Shoe Institute. Toes are ovals, rounds or soft squares. And there's lots of exposure via the revival of sling shapes.

Stretch fabrics register in a new group of bathing suits for 2-4 toddlers and 3-6x boys and girls. Other stretch fabrics for the crib and sandbox set, seen in the spring line of Carter's, were featured in underwear and play-by-day clothes.

12 Britons Lose Jobs As Security Risks

LONDON (AP)—Twelve British nuclear scientists and government officials have been removed from their jobs for security reasons since the Fuchs-Pontecorvo spy scandal of 1950, Prime Minister Harold Wilson disclosed Tuesday.

Wilson told the House of Commons the men had been moved "in the interests of security" either because they had relatives behind the Iron Curtain or were foreign-born, or for both Saylor wrote. "This was done reasons."

Schoolmen who favored little league baseball — 38 per cent of those surveyed — drew the line on little league basketball or football.

"They're too strenuous for this age group," a Utah administrator noted.

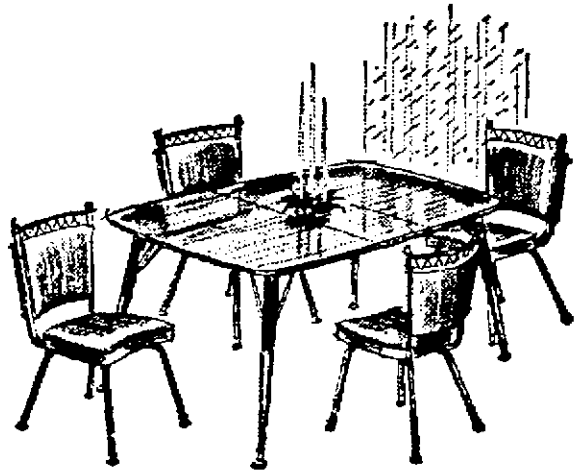

Among presidential charms and jinxes in the past are such generalizations as the fact that every bachelor who ever ran for president or vice president secured a popular majority of the vote; every man who married a widow and ran for the presidency won (including Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Jackson, and Harding); and every candidate who married a second time (except Theodore Roosevelt, whose first wife died young) lost.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 474 With the presidential election over on Nov. 8, 1864, public attention was swung to two naval heroes. William Barker Cushing, of the Albemarle exploit, preceded Capt. Napoleon Collins, captor of another Rebel raider, Florida (as told here earlier: No. 471).

Cushing, to whom fame came at 21, was a West Point student who chose the Navy in 1861. As a master's mate he took the Navy's first prize in the war, a tobacco schooner. He had commanded three other ships when, in October 1864, he volunteered to destroy the Confederate iron-clad ram Albemarle.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate

That 122-foot craft, driven by two 400-horsepower steam engines, had been built in the Roanoke River the spring of 1864, to shoot and ram holes in the Federal blockade line. Under Capt. John L. Cooke she cleared the river and Albemarle Sound of Union ships and enabled Rebel troops to recapture the town of Plymouth.

With an okay from his superior, Vice Admiral S. P. Lee (Kinsman of the Confederate R. E. Lee) for his daring plan, Cushing fitted a 30-foot launch with a swivel gun, and a boom for a spar torpedo. With 15 trained volunteers, armed with Colts, cutlasses and grenades, he penetrated the barriers in the Roanoke the night of Oct. 27, and thrust the torpedo below the level of iron-sheathing of Albemarle's oaken and pine hull (see left).

Cushing and his crew dove away from the blast that sank the Albemarle. Most were captured by Rebel shore patrols. Cushing hid in a swamp until he could steal a boat and row to a Union blockader.

No. 473 Philip H. Sheridan, as well as U. S. Grant and W. T. Sherman, was an influential factor in the defeat of their erstwhile ranking general, George B. McClellan, the Democratic nominee against Lincoln in 1864.

"Democratic prospects, so bright in August, faded with the first frosts of autumn," Prof. Eugene H. Roseboom recounted in "History of Presidential Elections" (pub. by Macmillan). "On the heels of the fall of Atlanta came the successes of Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley. . . . Cheered by the season of victory in the field, radicals and conservatives alike worked for Lincoln. . . . officeholders and contractors filled the party's campaign chest."

Stirring verses, "Sheridan's Ride," by Thomas Buchanan Read, which resounded through the press quickly, made the Irishman's rallying of panicked Union troops to take victory away from Jubal Early at Cedar Creek, Va., Oct. 19, more impressive. So did plaster statues of Sheridan [see below] that appeared as rivals of John Rogers' Groups.

Direct aid was given the Lincoln-Johnson ticket by Sheridan's letting 10,000 Pennsylvanians in his army be furloughed to swell the Republican vote in that doubtful state. It was carried by a small majority. The Sheridan effect upon the Irish-American vote was helpful everywhere.

Muldrew Will Go On Trial Again Monday

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI)—A man whose release from Moundsville Penitentiary triggered a probe of West Virginia prison record-keeping will go on trial here Monday.

Patrick Muldrew will be tried on a charge of accessory to murder, the same charge which once before netted him a life sentence under the Habitual Criminal Act.

He is accused of having taken part in a 1961 holdup in which an Elm Grove supermarket employee was killed.

His life imprisonment sentence in the first trial was lifted due to a legal technicality. At this point came his erroneous release from the penitentiary when Ohio detainees were still on file against him.

His second trial on the charge will begin Monday before Judge James McClure in Ohio Intermediate Court.

Sen. Byrd Praises Plan For Reservoir

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., praised the proposed Stone-wall Jackson reservoir at a public hearing here Wednesday.

Byrd said the dam and reservoir were planned to serve the Clarksburg-Weston area for a century.

He said the reservoir is planned to accommodate a 100 per cent increase in the population of Lewis and Harrison Counties.

The hearing was held to make public plans for the dam and reservoir and hear any complaints.

76% Of Shut Down Oyster Bars Reopen

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Seventy-six per cent of the public oyster bars which were taken out of production this fall because of water pollution have been reopened with full approval of health authorities.

Joseph H. Manning, director of the Department of Chesapeake Bay Affairs, made the report Wednesday.

He said corrective steps have been taken to the satisfaction of state and federal health officers. "The water quality is good in all of these areas," Manning told the Commission on Chesapeake Bay Affairs.

Tuberculosis Seminar Gets Under Way Here Today

A seminar on tuberculosis will be held today at Memorial Hospital Nurses Home, sponsored by the Allegheny-Garrett County Tuberculosis Association and District 1, Maryland Nurses Association.

Concluding the program will be a dinner at the Port Cumberland Hotel, scheduled at 6:30 p. m., which will precede a talk on "Chest Surgery" by Dr. Eugene Linberg, associate professor of surgery at University of Maryland School of Medicine.

Moderator of the discussion will be Dr. Arthur F. Jones, Garrett County medical officer. Introductory remarks will be given by Dr. Calvin Y. Hadidian.

Dr. Linberg received his medical degree from Duke University, School of Medicine and was awarded board certification in thoracic surgery in 1959.

A prolific writer, he has published numerous papers in that field, including two earlier this year, one in the American Surgeon and the other in the British Journal of Medicine.

Registration for the seminar will start at 9 a. m. and a "line" test will be given to those signing up by Mary Margaret Smith, RN, sultant in preventative disease.

That panel will be followed by surgeon, who was forced to withdraw because of a conflict with his professional work.

The seminar will start at 9:30 a. m. with introductory remarks by Dr. Martin Rothstein, who will moderate a panel on "Case Finding." The principal speaker will be Dr. Edmund G. Beacham, representative counselor for the American Thoracic Society, and a member of the executive committee of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association.

A talk on "Admission Procedures to Tuberculosis Patients" will be presented by Mrs. Helen Ruby, public health nurse, and Miss Jessie U. Abbott, RN, assistant director of nursing at Baltimore City Hospital, will speak on "Nursing Care in TB."

A question and answer period will follow the talks.

Mrs. Shirley S. Brooks will be moderator of the opening afternoon session, which will deal with the role of the public health nurse in implementing the recommendations of the task force in relation to hospital care and follow-up, with emphasis put on the family at the time of diagnosis.

The principal speaker will be Miss Jane Rollins, RN, a consultant in preventative disease.

Dr. Linberg is substituting for Dr. John Miller, Baltimore chest surgeon, who was forced to withdraw because of a conflict with his professional work.

W. Va. Business To Set Record

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A third straight record year for West Virginia business is predicted by the State Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber director Earle Elmore said Wednesday that this year 21 of 22 indicators were running ahead of last year's levels. Only natural gas production has failed to keep pace and this was attributed to a mild autumn.

Lumber production, auto sales, and insurance sales were particularly healthy fields, he said.

Elmore added that a continuing strong consumer demand should keep business levels high for the rest of 1964.

Engineers Back 240-Acre Rocky Gap State Park Lake

The consulting engineers for the feasibility study on the Rocky Gap State Park project have completed their studies and find that a 240-acre lake can be constructed as the main feature of the recreation area.

Whitman and Reardon Associates of Baltimore has done this part of the study. Estimates have been drawn up on the cost of the project and construction of the lake is expected to be approximately $860,000.

The State Department of Forests and Parks intends to request appropriations for detailed engineering studies for the entire project. Once this has been completed the project can be started.

There is some land which the state is seeking and negotiations are underway. One large tract which has been bought is the former McLuckie farm. The new state park will be only eight miles from Cumberland and will be visible from U. S. Route 40 on Martins Mountain.

Meanwhile, the engineering firm of Buchart-Horn of Baltimore has started studies for the Rocky Gap project. Allegany County has included this project as part of its upcoming roads program.

There will be cooperation between the county and state as to the road location and other facilities so that the best use of the park site can be made, according to Albert S. Paye, county engineer.

More than 40 per cent of the world's population above the age of 15, approximately 700 million persons, is illiterate, according to UNESCO statistics.

LaVale Scouts Seek Members

Boy Scout Troop 18, sponsored by the Methodist Men's Club, Park Place Church, LaVale, is holding a recruiting drive.

Boys from 11 to 15 are eligible to join and take part in hiking, camping and games.

B&O Main Lines Cleared

The main tracks of the B&O Railroad at Glencoe on the Pittsburgh Division were opened early yesterday after having been closed to traffic since Tuesday morning by a three-car derailment.

Railroad officials said traffic was routed over the Western Maryland Railway while the tracks were being cleared. Three carloads of stone derailed in the mishap.

The wreck train from Cumberland was sent to the scene Tuesday and completed the cleanup early yesterday.

Fun Day Event Planned At 'Y'

Central YMCA has scheduled a "fun day" for area boys and girls Saturday at noon.

The children will be treated to a hot dog lunch, a comedy movie, and an hour swim in the Y pool under the supervision of lifeguards. Children of ages from about eight to 13 are invited. Non-members of the YMCA will be charged a small program fee. Reservations may be made by calling YMCA Secretary Benjamin Haines at 724-5445.

The Labyrinths Of Research

One of the hidden costs of scientific and technical research is that of repeating work because the researcher did not know it had already been done. One estimate, admittedly rough, is that .9 of 1 per cent of research expenses could be avoided if all published information eventually discovered had turned up in time.

For U.S. taxpayers that would come to $135 million of the $15 billion they are putting into research this year.

Keeping in touch with all of the hundreds of thousands of articles that pour from the world's laboratories each year is obviously a hopeless job. But the U.S. government makes one of the major efforts, spending $201 million on scientific information services for its own projects and as a general service.

According to the Special House Committee on Government Research, the government spreads the task among 259 special libraries and other scientific information centers, most of them scattered in turn among nine executive departments and 12 agencies. This typical procedure not only complicates the quest for data, but in itself brings duplication and waste.

The committee makes obvious recommendations that there should be a central authority to force coordination of these operations and provide a clearing house to steer investigators quickly to likely sources, and that Washington should determine whether fewer information centers could serve as well or better.

It may never be possible to eliminate the ironic fact that it is sometimes cheaper to go ahead with a project than to hunt for an obscure report that may already cover it, but the committee has pointed out the government's responsibility in helping the nation get more of its research talent and dollars.

These Days

By John Chamberlain
Right-To-Work Laws

The big labor organizations are reading into the November 3 election returns a "mandate" to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act's Section 14B, which permits the separate states to pass right-to-work legislation. But, in spite of the whopping Democratic majorities in Congress, the chances of overturning the present law and thus forcing the union shop on the whole nation are not as bright as they seem on the surface.

On the face of it a lot of new Congressmen rode to victory with AFL-CIO support. But just how many of them made specific pledges to work for the repeal of 14B remains a secret between individual Congressmen and the unions. Labor has other demands which it intends to push in the next Congressional session, such as the thirty-five-hour week and the $2 minimum wage. Presumably a fair number of the generally pro-labor candidates reserved the right to pick and choose among the items on the labor agenda. They are not necessarily signed, sealed and delivered for everything that the union chiefs want.

The prime reason for thinking that the repeal of 14B will have harder sledding than some other labor demands is that, while the unions have big Democratic majorities to work with, they must also reckon with the fact that twenty separate states have right-to-work laws on their books. These states are represented in Congress by some extremely powerful legislators, including Senator John McClellan and Representative Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, and Senator Harry Byrd and Representative Howard Smith of Virginia. The pressure from "back home" in states like Arkansas and Virginia, which are not heavily industrialized, could keep labor legislation bottled up in committees.

Not even the fact that Adam Clayton Powell Jr. of New York's Harlem is chairman of the House Labor Committee guarantees good treatment of a 14B repeal bill in the House of Representatives. Powell has said he does not intend to open up the Taft-Hartley Act for revision; he is much more interested in promoting work opportunities for Puerto Rican and Negro voters in his district, and these voters are not necessarily welcomed by unions. If Powell continues to behave in accordance with his past record, he will first exact a quid pro quo for any House Labor Committee effort on behalf of a repeal of 14B. The quid pro quo would involve a wait-and-see period during which the unions would be expected to open their doors to Negro and Puerto Rican workers.

Another thing that may help preserve 14B is the public opinion polls. A Lou Harris poll, taken during the election, turned up the information that a majority of the people agreed with Barry Goldwater on just two things. One was on the right to work without being forced to join a union. The other was on keeping government from growing too big. Another poll, taken by Opinion Research of Princeton, New Jersey, showed that sixty-seven per cent of the people are for right to work.

Opponents of repeal of 14B have ordinarily defended the right-to-work laws on ethical and personal grounds. The right to work is the operative part of the right to life and liberty, for if a man cannot earn his living as he pleases, he can hardly dispose of his life as he pleases. The unions have countered this argument by accusing the non-union man of being a free loader who is willing to accept union-win benefits without paying his share of the cost of winning them. Many people find themselves confused in the cross-cross of arguments that appeal to differing conceptions of morality.

But the Harris poll, which showed an emotional linkage between belief in the right to work laws and a fear of big government, suggests a different approach to some of the defenders of 14B. These defenders advance the argument that Congress can't afford to trifle with laws that are already on the books in twenty states. After all, the Senate, as the "court of the states," owes something to the geographical units that comprise two-fifths of its total membership.

The states' rights appeal may commend itself particularly to the next Congress, which could be under some pressure to do something about a Supreme Court that has already overturned some historic states' rights in ordering legislative reapportionment in many local instances.

He Hasn't Mentioned The Admission Price'

Court's Position On Prayer Is Not Yet Clear

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — It has been assumed by many people that the Supreme Court of the United States, in an action taken the other day, cleared up the scope of its famous decision banning prayer in the public schools. But a close reading of the proceedings reveals that the situation is even fuzzier than it was before.

The high court itself did not make any comment but merely declined to hear a case that came to it from a lower court. When this happens, the inference is sometimes drawn that whatever the lower court has declared becomes "the law of the land."

In this instance, an issue was raised in the courts of the state of New York as to the constitutionality of the recitation in the public schools of the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. The plaintiffs in the case argued that inclusion of the words "under God" in the pledge made it a form of religious exercise which should be barred, just as prayers in the schools previously had been ruled out by the Supreme Court.

In overruling such a contention, the New York court cited an opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States handed down in 1952. It said in part:

"The First Amendment, however, does not say that in every and all respects there shall be a separation of church and state. Rather, it studiously defines the manner, the specific ways, in which there shall be no concert or union or dependency one on the other. That is the common sense of the matter. Otherwise the state and religion would be aliens to each other — hostile suspicious, and even unfriendly."

"Prayers in our legislative halls; the appeals to the Almighty in the messages of the Chief Executive; the proclamations making Thanksgiving Day a holiday; 'so help me God' in our courtroom oaths — these and all other references to the Almighty that run through our laws, our public rituals, our ceremonies would be flouting the First Amendment."

So, for all practical purposes, the above language — originally issued by the Supreme Court 12 years ago and now repeated by a high court in the state of New York — is left standing as "the law of the land" by the Supreme Court of the United States in declining to review this latest case.

But it will be noted that Justice Black, who delivered the opinion of the majority in the prayer case in 1962, said in a footnote to the decision:

"There is of course nothing in the decision reached here that is inconsistent with the fact that school children and others are officially encouraged to express love for our country by reciting historical documents such as the Declaration of Independence which contain references to the Deity or by singing officially espoused anthems which include the composer's professions of faith in a supreme being, or with the fact that there are many manifestations in our public life of belief in God. Such patriotic or ceremonial occasions bear no true resemblance to the unquestioned religious exercise that the state of New York has sponsored in this instance."

But what was left untouched in the latest case, involving the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, was the argument made in a con-curring opinion by Justice Douglas when the prayer-case decision was handed down in 1962. He said:

"What New York does on the opening of its public schools is what we do when we open court. Our cry has from the beginning announced the convening of the court and then added 'God save the United States and this honorable court.' That utterance is a supplication, a prayer in which we, the judges, are free to join, but which we need not recite any more than the students need recite the New York prayer. What New York does on the opening of its public schools is what each house of Congress does at the opening of each day's business."

But Justice Douglas suggested that the state of New York "oversteps the bounds" separating church and state because the exercise in the schools was "financed" by the state of New York through the operations of the Board of Regents.

In another case, however, handed down in 1963 by the Supreme Court of the United States, Justice Brennan, in an opinion concurring with the majority, wrote:

"The reference to Divinity in the revised Pledge of Allegiance, for example, may merely recognize the historical fact that our nation was believed to have been founded 'under God.' Thus reciting the pledge may be no more of a religious exercise than the reading aloud of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, which contains an allusion to the same historical fact."

In many public schools, the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag is recited each day. The question now can be raised as to whether the New Testament and the Old Testament might be held to constitute mere "history" and whether the reading of passages from the Bible could be construed as "historical" dissertations rather than religious exercises. The ambiguity in the various court rulings has not yet been cleared up.

By Henry Cathart

GOT YOUR PAY RAISE? — Have you gotten a pay raise recently? If you haven't you're dropping further behind in the economic competition.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that pay rates in private industry rose two to five per cent in the 12 months ending last March for most of the professional, administrative, technical and clerical work levels. This survey covered more than a million employees in 75 principal occupations throughout the nation.

The pay of engineers in private industry increased an average of 2.9 per cent; accountants were up 2.8 per cent; chemists were up 3.6 per cent and clerical employees gained 2.9 per cent.

These figures do not take into consideration the increased net income for individual workers stemming from the federal income tax cut that became effective early in the year.

1962? — For politicians, particularly on the losing side of an election, it's never too early to look ahead. The idea is to keep your team together with hopes when immediate performance is no longer possible.

In this vein, the early-early talk about GOP presidential hopefuls centers around two men with a third standing in the wings. The two are George Romney who won re-election as governor of Michigan in the face of a landslide vote for Lyndon Johnson, and Pennsylvania's Gov. William Scranton who, unlike most other liberal Republicans, set aside his personal antipathy for the GOP right wing and campaigned faithfully for party candidates for office from Goldwater on down.

The third man is becoming the perennial bridesmaid of the Republican Party. He is former Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Nixon looked good to all factions of the party during the campaign when he worked mightily for unity. But he damaged his own image with his party's liberals when he took out after New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and a host of liberal GOP leaders immediately after the votes were counted.

A Polyvalent Respiratory Vaccine Is Goal

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

More than 75 different agents are capable of producing upper respiratory infections. A vaccine against one is useless against the other 74. The goal is a polyvalent vaccine that will give immunity against all, including the viruses that cause the common cold.

The influenza vaccine contains substances that are effective against flu viruses that we encountered in the past, as well as against some of the current troublemakers. They offer protection against five or six viruses only and cannot be expected to prevent respiratory infections resulting from other viruses or bacteria.

The vaccine is said to be 70 per cent effective and is worthwhile despite its limited scope of usefulness. It is a must for those who are hardest hit by flu — victims of chronic lung and heart diseases, oldsters, and pregnant women.

Influenza ranks second to the common cold, with 83 million cases reported in the national health survey for the year ended June, 1963. We are not dealing with a second rate disease.

Numerous problems are associated with the preparation and use of respiratory vaccines. The body seldom develops prolonged protection against these diseases, despite the vaccine, and the reinfection rate is high. Authorities reason that if nature cannot do so, how is it possible to develop a vaccine that will give long lasting immunity?

Viruses are unpredictable when it comes to propagating them in the laboratory. This makes it difficult to prepare standard vaccines in large quantities. These viruses also have the faculty of changing slightly from year to year as a result of mutation. The Asian strain of 1963 may not be identical to the 1964 model.

BETTER THAN EVER

Mrs. J. B. writes: Can a man return to normal living after a heart attack?

REPLY
Yes, and often finds a new life that is better, happier, and more rewarding. As an example, we frequently tell those recovering from coronary thrombosis that they now have an excuse to turn down or avoid anything they do not care to do. This means parties, staying up late, speeches, and committee meetings.

SHORT STORY

S. J. writes: My 24-year-old son is short. To make himself look taller, he stuffs paper inside his shoes. I'm afraid he will fall but he insists on doing this. Please tell me what can happen.

REPLY

There is no harm in this, provided the paper does not put an abnormal strain on the arches. Elevator shoes are better but, best of all would be to adjust to his short stature.

TOMORROW: Medical Brow-

ing.
To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

a cost of $2,300,000,000, borne directly by the United States.

Following Ike's negative decision, various moves were made to sneak in the side door of Indochina. In May 1953 the Joint Chiefs permitted U. S. transport plane pilots to fly supplies in to aid the French. In December of that year the Navy proposed turning seven vessels over to the French. In February 1954, Admiral Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, talked Ike into sending 400 U. S. technicians and mechanics into Indochina.

Side-Door Help Expands

In April of that year the admirals proposed sending two to four airplane carriers in to rescue the beleaguered French at Dienbienphu.

It was in early April also that the drive to override Eisenhower's caution and send U. S. troops into the jungle war reached its climax with an off-the-record statement by Vice President Nixon. He told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that the United States was ready to send troops. The story leaked to the London Daily Telegraph, which was not bound by Nixon's seal of confidence, and bounced back across the Atlantic to the American press.

The American public reacted negatively and indignantly.

Simultaneously, alarmed Prime Minister Anthony Eden got on the transatlantic telephone and told Eisenhower in no uncertain terms that if the United States got into the Indochina war it would have to fight without allies.

Nixon's accidental leak to the newspaper editors probably prevented the military, supported by Nixon, from enjoining Eisenhower into all-out intervention.

Shortly after this, in July 1954, the French, discouraged, disgusted and drained white, pulled out of Indochina. The Geneva agreements had been signed setting up four independent, neutral nations, and the United States stepped in — again through the side door — to help Laos and South Vietnam.

The French at the time thought we were fools. But since they were sore at Eisenhower for signing a truce in Korea which permitted Communist China to shift troops and supplies south, they didn't mind our assuming the Indochina headache.

Immediately, in August 1954, one million refugees began trek-

By Drew Pearson

king from North to South Vietnam. This was where the United States began to get much more deeply involved. Most of these refugees were Roman Catholics, converted by American and French missionaries.

Cardinal Spellman made a special trip to Saigon, announced a Christmas contribution of $100,000 to aid the refugees, came home to urge further U. S. support. The U. S. government put up a Christmas gift of $20,571,418.

Part of the trouble ever since has been from these one million refugees who had to find new homes in the South, and their clashes with Buddhists. And a good part of the trouble facing the United States came from the fact that it had been eulogized right into the middle of a religious war.

Speedier Slide Into Side Door

After the Kennedy administration assumed power in January 1961, the American slide into the side door of Saigon continued at a greater speed.

As a Senator, John F. Kennedy had put himself squarely on the side of the military in its backstage argument with President Eisenhower.

On February 10, 1954, when the Joint Chiefs, led by Admiral Radford, were trying to persuade him to intervene in Indochina, Ike stated: "I say that I cannot conceive of a greater tragedy for America than to get heavily involved now in an all-out war in any of these regions."

But ten days later, Secretary of State Dulles, discreetly nudging Ike's elbow, stated that the United States would retaliate instantly if Communist China were to enter the war, and the record shows that Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts backed him up.

"It is important that the Senate and the American people demonstrate their endorsement of Mr. Dulles' objectives," Sen. Kennedy told the Senate. "If necessary, the United States will take the ultimate step . . . it is war."

The record shows that it was December 12, 1961, at the tail end of JFK's first year in office, that the USMC Core arrived bearing a load of helicopters with U. S. pilots as the first military contingent to do what Eisenhower had always opposed doing — intervening militarily.

President Johnson, reading the record, is extremely loath to push that intervention any further.

Girls, Girls, Girls

By John Crosby

LONDON

"Starts, today—a brilliant Express series—telling the story of woman and the beauty she values."

That's what I like about the British popular press. It never lets massacres in the Congo or the crisis over the pound sterling or Viet Nam or the rest of that nonsense distract it from the truly enduring and important things like girls.

Every time I pick up a British popular newspaper or, for that matter, the popular magazines, they are just plunging into another brilliant series: What is beauty? What is woman? Whither womanhood? Whither beauty? All with pictures. That brilliant Express series featured an eight-column picture of a naked girl lying down, behind a fishnet.

"Women," says a psychiatrist Joseph Brier, "have become obsessed in the last 20 or 30 years with shape." One of the ways you justify printing pictures of naked girls in the paper is to go talk to a psychiatrist and ask him what is beauty and whither womanhood.

"If you are slender and lanky with bird-like bones, you come under the heading of an ectomorph type . . . guilt and anxiety tend to be associated with absence of fat." (The naked girl behind the fishnet looked very anxious, indeed. Great absence of fat there.)

For a whole week the Express went on this way, dwelling on the shape of woman—showing how it has changed from the Venus de Milo to Ruben's huge ladies to Theda Bara and Marilyn Monroe and so forth. With pictures. Lots of pictures.

Well, sir, I'd just drunk it all in — women's shape and why and whither—when the Daily Mail took up the cudgels, contradicting everything the Express had said, taking as their text the sculptor Rodin's statement: "What we adore in the human body, more than its beautiful form, is the inner flame which seems to shine from within and to illuminate it." In other words—down with the shape; it's the inner flame.

The Mail went on for about three days, pushing the inner flame. Beauty is confidence. It's a feeling. Nothing to do with looks and, above all, shape. Pictures of Diana Duff Cooper, Lady Astor, and that British Olympic winner, Ann Packer, more or less upstaging the Express collection of women, which went in strongly for girl models, actresses, and Marilyn Monroe.

"Many men find the model beautiful but unattractive," sneered the Mail under a picture of Jean Shrimpton. "To a wart hog another wart hog is attractive" was its editorial position, a fairly austere one.

Well, that's what I like about the British press. Great freedom of opinion. One paper pushing the shape, another the inner flame. Actually, the divergence between the Mail and the Express has gone much further than that.

They are miles apart on whither women in 1965. The Express writes about "The Shape of '65" as follows:

"John Bates, young British designer, who is extremely shape conscious, sketches his little girl shape for spring. The back shows. The under arm shows. A lot of leg shows."

Well, I'd just about adjusted to the little girl shape, all of it showing, when the Daily Mail's Judy Innes flatly contradicted it. "The 1965 face is going to be soft, feminine, and natural. It will be long to a sexy, curvy woman rather than a child waif." Next year's women, says Miss Innes, will be "women women."

The Express is pushing child waifs, the Mail is very large on "women women." I rather suspect this island is big enough for both — child waifs with little girls' shapes and women women who will be, according to the Mail, "fatter, sexier, with natural faces, real women."

Well, I like child waifs, all right. Women women, too—within bounds. However, fellows, I have one large complaint. Max Factor is quoted, in the Mail, as saying the '65 woman will be "natural, natural, natural." (That's the way those guys talk—three of everything). But when you read a little further you find that what Max Factor considers the natural, natural, natural looks is much more lipstick and much more rouge.

Aw, now, come off it, Max Factor! What's natural, natural, natural about girls' putting all that gook on their faces? We just got all the gook off their faces and they looked natural, natural, natural enough for me and for most of the men I know.

I realize you sell the stuff, Max Factor, and I don't want to undermine the cosmetic business. But why can't you guys follow the lead of the underwear racket, which is making undergarments so wispy you can't see them and charging a hell of a lot of money for them. Look, Max Factor, why don't you sell some beautiful boxes full of fresh air, call it the "Natural, Natural, Natural," sell it for $6.85. Make a fortune. And we fellows wouldn't have to kiss a girl through three inches of gook.

Stock Market Record Part 2 Tuesday's

NEW YORK (UPI)—The prices recovered somewhat Wednesday from Tuesday's sharp selloff but on the whole the performance was unimpressive. Trading was active.

Prices opened mixed but improved substantially soon after the noon hour but was quickly overcome. Bargain hunting was evidenced by gains in a number of issues which have declined sharply in the recent sessions.

Dow-Jones industrial average picked up 2.73 at 876.16. Railroad stock was the most active, up 0.08 at 209.89. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 0.24 to 83.79.

Trading totaled 4,930,000 shares compared with 4,940,000 shares Tuesday. Of the 1,374 issues traded, 562 advanced, 17 rose to new 1964 highs while 524 declined, 43 to new lows.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The biggest television show on television is about to make its debut, a program which features 37 members in the cast.
And they're all related!
ABC-TV introduces its massive "King Family" series Jan.
23. The show will be aired on Saturday nights preceding Lawrence Welk and "The Hollywood Palace." That makes three variety shows in a row for ABC on Saturday night, a fact which should bring joy to unemployed jugglers and sword swallowers.
The King Family, the heart of which is the four King sisters who perform in nightclubs, impressed the network with a one shot special show it did earlier this season.
The family ranges in age from grandfather's 79 years down to a two year old. Then there are husbands, wives, and their children, three generations in all.
Yvonne King, a pretty blonde, and one of the singing quartet is family spokesman.

"We'll do a little bit of eve-thing," Yvonne said. "It's sically a musical show becathis is a musical family."
Yvonne suggested that family do the show sev-months ago.
"Some of the family never been in show business performers," she said. It only natural that some of them consider the idea as unusual say the least.
After all, how often does person look at 37 members his family and say, "let's our own television show." Rly.
"They thought I had holes
my head," said Yvonne.
Miss King said much of family talent will be as sp-taneous as possible.
"We don't want to spoil a thing," she said. "We don't e-tell our kids to do anything.
teach them the songs but don't want anything that is staged."
What the King family may lack in talent, they can get in -laws, talented fellows.
married pretty King girls.
One of the girls is married to the orchestra leader Al-Rey. Another is married to b-leader Del Courtney.
"There is something for everybody in this family," claim Yvonne. "You'll excuse me sound biased but we have most beautiful teenagers ever saw. We also have ballads that are pretty darn cute. T-we have our singing group
And there's always somebody is happy to see grandpa."

Garrett County School Board Issues Report

Statement Shows Efficient Operation

OAKLAND—The Board of Education in Garrett County disbursed $1,860,489.88 during the fiscal year July 1, 1963 to June 30, 1964, it was revealed in the annual report of receipts and expenditures.

This included a capital outlay of $8,727.67, but did not include school construction funds or payments of bonded indebtedness. A report on these funds is given separately.

Receipts from all sources, including a balance of $115,742.78, amounted to $1,997,153.59.

Receipts from county sources totaled $513,399.42 with $506,721 coming from the county levy. Revenue from state sources included $196,000 for aid per classroom unit, $198,036 from aid per pupil, $879,263.05 from the equalization aid fund, $26,764.93 as part payment of officials' salaries, $465 for physical examination of bus drivers, $6,224.16 for handicapped children and $822 for adult education. Total federal funds amounted to $12,301.89.

In addition there was $1,589.57 from government owned land, some $811.71 from non-revenue receipts, $8,140 from school units in other states, and interfund transfers of $33,134.99 from state-federal school lunch and special milk and $3,558.09 from social security.

Disbursements were separated as follows: Administration, $37,332.19 with $32,119.76 for salaries and wages, instruction, $1,184,452.91; $9,168.23 for pupil personal services; $1.17 for health services, $371,643.26 for pupil transportation; $100,294.80 for operation of plant and equipment; $68,891.74 for maintenance of plant; $16,443.78 for fixed charges; $3,322.90 for food services; $600.27 for student body activities; $8,727.67 for capital outlay; $18,268.12 for outgoing transfers; and $36,922.84 for interfund transfers.

Under instruction the figures were broken down for elementary, secondary and adult education as follows: $635,841.37 for elementary; $551,850.54 for secondary and $1,161 for adult education. The salaries for elementary teachers totaled $611,600.78 compared to $520,439.55 for secondary instruction.

Also listed in the annual report was the status of the school debt. During the year the county paid $100,000 on long term bonds with interest of $21,031.25. The principal on state loan payments totaled $51,941.83 with interest of $3,776.08. Principal on short term loan amounted to $13,694.95 with interest of $10,741.79. This made a total paid for the year of $201,289.99 on the school indebtedness. In the receipts this year was $3,805.68 from the natural gas fund tax.

The balance outstanding as of June 30 is $755,000 on long term bonds and $578,949.13 on state loans for a total of $1,333,949.13. This compared to the total of

ASCS Committees Elected In Eight Garrett Co. Areas

OAKLAND—Community committees and alternates for the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service for the eight areas of Garrett County, and also the county committee which will serve for one year, have been selected.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—A young Harrison County man, who last July escaped from Weston state hospital and kidnapped a Weston radio announcer, has been sentenced to life imprisonment on an earlier rape charge.

William H. Barker, 23, pleaded guilty Wednesday to raping a 16-year-old Weston girl May 8 and 9. Harrison County Criminal Judge Arlos Harbert imposed sentence immediately.

Barker was confined at the hospital for mental examinations in June and escaped July 2. He broke into the home of radio announcer Dave Weber and held the family captive for several hours.

Weber agreed to drive Barker toward Ohio. New Martinsville apprehended Barker at a gas station after an attendant noticed the license number and notified authorities. Weber was released unharmed.

Charges of breaking and entering, kidnapping, and felonious assault are pending against Barker in Lewis County.

FSC Musicum Will Present Bach's Oratorio

Yule Program December 6

FROSTBURG—The Collegium Musicum of Frostburg State College, under the direction of James G. Pierce of the Department of Music, will present selections from Bach's Christmas Oratorio next Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Condon Hall auditorium. The oratorio is one of Bach's major choral works and is scored for chorals, four soloists and festival orchestra.

Soprano solos will be sung by Sara Pierce, faculty member; Darlene Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones, Winchester Road, a vocal major at FSC will sing the contralto solos. Robert Price, soloist at Riverside Church in New York City, will sing the demanding tenor parts. The bass solo and recitatives will be sung by Kenneth Wilson of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Cumberland. The college-community orchestra will perform the instrumental parts of the oratorio.

The text of the oratorio is taken from the gospels according to St. Luke and St. Matthew. The Christmas story is sung by the tenor "evangelist." The narrative is broken by the entry of other voices representing the different characters in the story.

Next Sunday's public performance is the first Collegium Musicum concert of the 1964-65 season.

Piedmont Files Request For Sewage Funds

PIEDMONT—A compilation of the necessary data to secure a federal grant for the proposed sewage disposal system in Piedmont, prepared by Robert T. Regester, Baltimore planning engineer and Attorney Charles Smith, Keyser, has been forwarded to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare at Charlottesville, Va., according to Mayor Donald M. Mellor.

He said this provided the information needed for the department to approve the grant. The next step will be the approval of the bonding council to issue bonds, the amount being contingent upon the federal grant and the city's share of the cost. The firm of Walter Woody and Heimerdinger of Cincinnati will handle the bond issue.

It was learned the inclusion of a screen grit chamber in the plans for the sewer project has been requested by the Upper Potomac River Commission.

Mr. Regester, Attorney Smith, Jack Frohlich, bonding firm representative and Mayor Mellor and City Council held a conference November 9 to iron out the questions delaying construction of the project to tie the town sewers into the Waste Treatment Plant of the UPRC, which is located in Westport.

With the last barrier in the negotiations apparently solved, Mayor Mellor and Council hope to get the project under way in the Spring. The George Construction Company of Cumberland was successful bidder for the contract.

Social Worker Conned Expert Cons In Prison

Pleads Guilty To Extortion

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — George Archer, 33, former prison social worker, will spend Christmas at home.

The same can't be said for some of the inmates at the Holmesburg prison he promised parole jobs — for a fee.

Archer conned the convicts — some of them con experts themselves — by promising them outside jobs to help speed paroles. The fee was what the traffic would bear, up to $50 in some cases.

The jobs didn't exist. He pleaded guilty to extortion on Nov. 24, and was brought before Judge Leo Weinrott Tuesday for sentence.

Judge Weinrott, beaming with the Yuletide spirit, decided Archer should spend Christmas with his three children. He gave a 30 days to 23½ months sentence, dating back to Nov. 24 when Archer was jailed.

The minimum sentence will have him out of prison Dec. 24 just in time for late Christmas shopping.

The cons who bought the jobs will still be in.

New Pact Ends Bristol Strike

BRISTOL, Pa., (UPI) — A 13-day strike at the Rohm and Haas Co. plant ended Wednesday when union members unanimously ratified an agreement on a new contract.

Some 1,400 production and maintenance workers, members of Local 88, United Glass and Ceramic Workers, AFL-CIO, have been on strike since Oct. 19.

Jesse Daughterty, president of District 5 of the union, said the new pact was accepted at a membership meeting in the Goodwill Fire Hall here.

Details reached Tuesday by union and company negotiators, were withheld pending further talks on matters not covered by the contract.

A company spokesman said some of the men were scheduled to be called back to work Wednesday night.

Barron May Get New Car

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — At least two former governors have been given Cadillacs when they left office and there's a chance that outgoing Gov. W. W. Barron will get one too.

A campaign is underway at the Statehouse by some high-ranking state officials to present Barron with a sleek new Cadillac.

Reports are that contributions by state employees are strictly voluntary. Former Govs. Cecil Underwood and William C. Marland each drove away new Cadillacs, compliments of state workers, when they left office.

Anne Arundel Co. Gets U.S. Grant For Land Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Urban Renewal Administration announced approval Wednesday of a $9,000 grant to Anne Arundel County, Md., under the open space land program.

The grant would be used to help acquire 10 acres known as the Dorsey Road property adjacent to Friendship International Airport for park and recreation development.

The total acquisition cost of the property is estimated at $30,000.

Recount Started

KEYSER—The recount of votes cast for Mineral County commissioner in the November 3 general election is under way at the Court House.

Mrs. Margaret L. Crites, defeated independent candidate, requested the recount, alleging irregularities in the balloting.

Sitting in on the recount are Mrs. Crites and Guy C. Adams, Democrat, the winner in the three-candidate race.

Discuss High School Paper

Prof. W. R. Summers Jr., of West Virginia University is shown at left, talking over the Keyser High School paper with Carole Calentine and Mrs. James Goldworthy at the school after he had delivered a talk to the journalism students on advertising and journalism in student publications.

KHS Students Hear WVU Journalism Teacher

KEYSER — Professor W. R. Summers Jr., member of the School of Journalism of West Virginia University, spoke to the Keyser High School Journalism Class, on fundamental steps for successful advertising in a high school paper.

Commenting that 80 per cent of the wealth in the United States is controlled by women, he advised the group to make their ads appealing to women, who do the major part of the buying.

"Young people are a better market than adults because teenagers have not made preferences to certain brands. Direct your ads to them," he said.

As he made further suggestions,

Study Group Probes SSAC Responsibilities

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — A study committee investigating the West Virginia Secondary Schools Activities Commission (SSAC) discussed various problems and criticism regarding the commission with State Schools Supt. Rex Smith here Wednesday.

Each of the 14-member group was asked to make a continuing study and draw up suggestions regarding the SSAC's control of extra-curricular activities in state school.

Recommendations by each member will be aired at another meeting Jan. 27 with Smith before he reports the findings to the State Board of Education.

The SSAC came under fire earlier this year when State Sen. William Tompos of Weirton charged that it had overstepped its authority in refusing to let the Weirton High School Band participate in the World's Fair.

Appearing Wednesday before the study group were SSAC executive secretary W. Gordon Eismon, Clarence Brook of the State Education Department and a representative of the State Attorney General's office.

Two Mt. Savage Churches Plan Bible Study

MT. SAVAGE — A cooperative venture in keeping Bible Sunday, December 6, has been arranged between the Methodist and Episcopal Churches in Mt. Savage.

It is the appointed Scriptural lessons and Collect prayer for the Day, the 2nd Sunday in Advent, which sets the theme for the observance and gives the day its name.

The event will be held in St. George's at 7:30 p. m. The speaker on the Holy Bible will be a Methodist. Displays of various editions and sizes of the Scriptures will be available for perusal as well as newer translations by both inter-denominational boards and individuals.

Board To Meet

Italians Seeking Foreign Trade

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Italian Foreign Trade Minister Bernardo Mattarella arrived here Wednesday on the first stop of a U.S. visit to talk with business leaders and stimulate Italy-American trade.

Mattarella met with more than 100 Greater Philadelphia area corporation executives and attended a Chamber of Commerce luncheon in his honor.

The luncheon was co-sponsored by the city's six international banks which are engaged in foreign trade and overseas business.

Mattarella's visit will take him to Pittsburgh, Pa., Wilmington, Del., New York, and Washington.

Those losing jobs and willing to move are to be offered new employment. In its normal payroll turnover, the Defense Department usually hires 135,000 civilians a year.

Devotions were given by Mary Bean; "Thanksgiving," a reading by Margaret Walsh; piano solo, James Shumaker; "The Gift of Giving," a reading, Janet Aldridge and group singing.

Others attending were La Verne Kerr, Eleanor Richards, Lena Simmons, Annie Lindsay, Marian Bond, Mary Reidler, Mary McLuckie, Louise Plummer, Philomena Bradley, Jennie Bowser, Althea Yenshaw, Elizabeth Workman, Elsie Williams and Rachel Hughes.

The next meeting will be held at the First Congregational Church, December 11 at 6:30 p. m. in the form of a Christmas dinner. Gifts will be exchanged and class sisters revealed. Reservations must be made with Mrs. La Verne Kerr no later than Dec. 6.

The program committee includes Mary McLuckie, Elizabeth Workman and Margaret Walsh.

W. Va. Girl Wins $500 Scholarship

CHICAGO (UPI)—A Nicholas County, W. Va., girl won a $500 college scholarship at the national 4-H Club Congress here Wednesday.

She is Nicholas County High School senior Janet Cox, 17, of Mt. Nebo. She won the award for saving her family $1,250 by canning and freezing 4,000 quarts of fruits and vegetables in the last eight years.

25 W. Va. Nurses Study Disaster

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — About 25 nurses from all parts of West Virginia took a one-day course Wednesday in the effects of a natural disaster on a community and its people.

The course was sponsored here by the State Department of Health. It concentrated on health problems which might be encountered when operating a shelter.

Speakers included State Health Director N. H. Dyer and James Tilson, executive director of the Kanawha-Clay Chapter of the American Red Cross.

PSC To Hold Paw Paw Hearing

PAW PAW — An application by the Town of Paw Paw for permission to establish a sewage system was set for a hearing December 14 by the Public Service Commission in Charleston yesterday.

The town said it plans to construct a sewer system and treatment plant at a cost of $75,000, financing it through a $43,000 revenue bond issue and a $33,000 federal grant.

Municipal officials also seek approval of a fee schedule based on amounts of water used each month.

Frostburg Gets New Automatic Billing Machine

FROSTBURG — When residents of Frostburg receive their next water bills and tax bills they will find that they have a new look.

Delivery was made this week on a Compu-tronic billing machine which has been on order for several months.

According to William Vogtman, city clerk, this new machine will be used in preparing water and tax bills and the city payroll.

All information concerning rates, wages and other costs are "fed" into the machine during its construction. When a water bill is prepared a pre-printed form is inserted into the machine. Buttons are pushed giving last reading, present reading and rate. Another button is pushed and in one second the bill is figured and printed ready for delivery.

The machine is completely automatic and is electronically controlled.

Hulett Smith
To Welcome
Help On Roads

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov.-elect Hulett Smith told an organizational meeting of his Task Force on Roads he would welcome recommendations as a basis for accelerating the state's road program.

Smith told the committee its main tasks will include study of the $200 million road bond issue, update present criteria used for maintaining, constructing, and financing secondary roads and preparing legislation which might establish a Governor's Advisory Committee on Secondary Roads.

Smith told the group after completing its study, they would meet again Jan. 5 before his inauguration.

Then he said he would take the recommendations along with proposals of the State Road Commission in formulating legislation to get the job done.

Gen. Gelston Receives Award
On Achievement

BALTIMORE (AP)—Brig. Gen. George M. Gelston, who commanded National Guard troops in Cambridge for a year, received the Advertising Club of Baltimore's award for Civic achievement Wednesday.

Gelston, who received praise for handling a sensitive situation well, said, "In the name of the 5,000 National Guardsmen who served in Cambridge, I accept this."

It was their task to keep the peace in Cambridge when a Negro civil rights drive was followed by violence.

The troops were first sent in to the city in June, 1963. They were withdrawn last June.

Previous recipients of the Advertising Club's "Man of the Year" award included Joseph Sherbow, Willard Rouse, Carroll Rosenbloom and Judge Simon

Electronic Nerve Center
Is Unveiled At Canton

CANTON, Ohio (UPI)—American Electric Power (AEP) System, the Nation's largest investor-owned electric energy producer, unveiled its new $6 million electronic nerve center here Wednesday.

The computer center complex is tied into the AEP system's other principal operating headquarters in Fort Wayne, Ind., and Roanoke, Va., and with 15 power plants.

Member firms include two which serve West Virginia customers, Appalachian Power and Wheeling Electric.

The centers are connected by a 1,700-mile microwave system, which provides instant communication and has a capacity of 300 simultaneous messages.

The local computer center consists of a power control center and a data processing center.

The power control section automatically oversees the economic dispatching of more than 6 million kilowatts of electricity from the 15 power plants. It also regulates its frequency and controls the exchange of power with neighboring utilities.

Class Arranges
Christmas Dinner

FROSTBURG — The Loyalty Bible Class of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will hold their Christmas dinner on Tuesday at 6 p. m. at the church. Mrs. Bertha Arnold will conduct the devotions. Mrs. Pearl Close will be in charge of a short business session.

Secret sisters will be revealed and new ones chosen.

The data center centralized automates billing functions for the system's almost 1.5 million customers in seven states and correlates accounting, financial, engineering and management information.

Ohio Power Co. provided the office space for the Center. Ohio Power is one of six operating utilities making up the AEP System. The others are Appalachian Power Co., Roanoke; Indiana & Michigan Electric Co., Fort Wayne; Kentucky Power Co., Ashland, Ky.; Kingsport, Tenn., Power Co.; and Wheeling, W. Va., Electric power with neighboring utilities.

Conlon To Join Travel Agents On West Coast

James L. Conlon, of Conlon Travel Agency, will be among a contingent of district travel agents aboard Trans World Airlines' first non-stop Pittsburgh-to-Los Angeles flight on TWA's Starstream Jet.

The group is scheduled to leave Greater Pittsburgh Airport today at 5:30 p. m. (EST) and will arrive in the West Coast city at 8:25 (Pacific Standard Time). Actual time of the flight is slightly less than six hours.

Mr. Conlon and his fellow travel agents will make a familiarization tour of the West Coast that begins tomorrow with luncheon at Knott's Berry Farm and an afternoon visit to Disneyland.

Saturday's schedule includes a studio tour at Universal City, lunch in the Monseigneur Room of the Beverly-Hilton Hotel and a short tour of the Beverly Hills area while en route to Los Angeles International Airport for a flight to San Francisco.

Arriving in San Francisco at 4:44 p. m. Saturday, the group will check in at the new San Francisco Hilton Hotel before assembling for the Garry Tours night club tour that will stop for dinner at the Good Earth Restaurant in Chinatown, a floor show at the Casa Madrid Club and entertainment at the Purple Onion Cellar Club.

After the Purple Onion stop the travel agents will go to San Francisco's Nob Hill, where the escorted tour ends.

On Sunday the eastern tourists will cross the Golden Gate Bridge for a look at the giant redwood trees in Muir's Woods and lunch at the Alta Mira Restaurant in Sausalito.

The return trip via TWA Flight 66 will be made Monday.

Area Heart Board Will Meet Sunday

There will be a meeting of the board of directors of the Allegheny-Garrett County Heart Association on Sunday at 7 p. m. at Radio Station WTBO, Byrd Avenue.

James W. Webster Jr., president will preside. Reports will be given by the Medical Advisory Board, special events committee, nursing seminar committee, professional education committee, public education committee, fund raising, rheumatic fever program, membership committee, and general business reports.

BRIEF REUNION—Mrs. Barbara Shields, 17, is briefly reunited with her four-month-old daughter, Jennifer, at Youth Guidance Center in San Francisco. Police booked her for child abandonment after she had abandoned the baby at a downtown hotel and then returned to try to reclaim the child.

Rosenbaum's Aid Dallas Fund

Simon and Stuart Rosenbaum present a check to Fred Hutchinson for the Dallas Fund, which will send the Allegheny High School band and drill team to Dallas for the Cotton Bowl parade January 1.

Library Lists Its Circulation At 20,951 Books

November circulation of the Allegheny County Library in its five building branches totaled 20,951 books compared with 19,676 in November 1963, according to Charles Blank, librarian.

Mr. Blank did not include the library's bookmobile in his comparison because it was out of service more than a week last month because of repairs.

As a result the bookmobile circulated only 3,427 volumes compared with 6,072 in November 1963.

AF Jets Break Flight Record

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Four F4C Phantom jet fighters touched down Wednesday after an 18-hour flight of almost 10,000 miles, and the Air Force claimed a new endurance record.

The flight "shows we can go from here to anywhere — the farthest point in the world — in daylight hours," said Lt. Gen. Bruce K. Hollaway, deputy commander of the U.S. Strike Command, which has headquarters at MacDill Air Force Base.

The planes of the Tactical Air Command left MacDill at 11:00 p. m. Tuesday, flew a circuitous route out over the Atlantic, then to the West Coast and finally returned to their starting base.

Educators Study Curriculum Changes

Groups of Allegheny County educators met Tuesday and yesterday afternoons at the Board of Education office to consider revisions in the proposed curriculums for social studies and English in elementary schools.

Tuesday, Dr. Robert J. Shockley, assistant superintendent for curriculum, and the three supervisors of elementary education met with a group considering the second grade social studies program. The elementary supervisors are Miss Margaret E. Doak, Miss Elizabeth I. Flake and Miss Mary E. Straw.

Meeting with them were Paul M. Arbogast, principal of Johnson Heights School; Miss Margaret S. Ingles, second grade teacher at Johnson Heights, and Mrs. Frieda H. Massara, who teaches a combined first and second grade at Mt. Royal School.

Yesterday, Dr. Shockley, Miss Doak and Miss Straw met with the entire group which participated in the curriculum workshop last summer on elementary school English. A rough draft of the curriculum guide has been prepared and the principals and teachers involved offered a number of revisions.

Norman Scribner Will Conduct Orchestra, Choir

Norman Scribner, 28-year-old former resident of Cumberland, will conduct orchestra and choir in the National Symphony Orchestra's annual production of Handel's "Messiah" in Washington's Constitution Hall on December 5 and 6.

This will be the second time that Mr. Scribner has faced this challenge. Howard Mitchell, conductor of the National Symphony, let the former local resident take over the complete "Messiah" production last year. Critically, it was very well received.

The conductor's father was pastor of Centre Street Methodist Church at the time of his death about 10 years ago. His mother lives at 107 Luterman Road and teaches home economics at Oldtown High School.

Kiwanis Club Again Selling Claxton Cakes

The Cumberland Kiwanis Club again this year is selling Claxton fruit cake as a benefit for its Sunshine Camp Fund.

Guy P. Liller is serving as general chairman for the sale and all Kiwanians will have some of the cakes to sell. They may be purchased at the Columbia Gas office, from Commercial Press, the News Center, 17 South Centre Street, or Typewriter Sales and Service, 74 Pershing Street. Phone orders will be accepted at PA 4-6400, PA 2-0570, PA 2-1888, PA 2-6830 or PA 2-2973.

The Kiwanis Club will meet at 12:15 p. m. today at Central YMCA, where the speaker will be Miss Darlene Elliott of Pittsburgh, from the public relations department of the Columbia Gas System. Her topic will be "Energy Unlimited."

Guidance Group Holds Session At College Here

Guidance counselors in the Allegheny County public schools have a better understanding of the program offered at Allegheny Community College as a result of a meeting Tuesday afternoon at the college.

Jack A. Petry, county supervisor of high schools, conducts a monthly meeting with the guidance counselors. Generally, they are held at the Board of Education office. Mrs. Sharon C. Hott, registrar at the college, generally attends the meetings at the board office.

When the guidance counselors met Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Hott and Roy S. Weed, the college business manager, took the guidance counselors on a tour of the college.

In their discussion, she pointed out the present program and future plans for ACC, the role of the college in the community and what the college means to students and parents. An increasingly larger portion of Allegheny County high school graduates are enrolling at the college each year.

Mrs. Hott also pointed out to the counselors that ACC students have been quite successful in having their credits accepted at other institutions. She mentioned UCLA and the University of Texas as two universities far away from here which have accepted all ACC credits of transfer students.

Attending the meeting Tuesday were Paul J. Cuba and John R. Snyder, counselors at Allegheny; Miss Jane H. Grindel and John D. Kelly, counselors at Beall; Augustine A. Diaz, counselor at Cresap; Mrs. Margaret S. Atkinson, counselor at Flintstone; Mrs. Dolores C. Morgan and Ralph P. Wimer, counselors at Fort Hill; Ronald Sheally, counselor at Oldtown; and James D. Preaskorn, counselor at Valley.

Mrs. Catherine M. McGiboney, counselor at Bruce, and Raymond R. Pomeroy, counselor at Mt. Savage, were unable to attend.

Railway Declares Quarterly Dividends

BALTIMORE (AP)—Directors of the Western Maryland Railway declared the regular quarterly dividends Wednesday on the company's common stock, and two classes of its preferred stock.

The dividends included 25 cents a share on the common stock, 70 cents a share on the first preferred cumulative 7 per cent stock, and 15 cents a share on the first preferred cumulative 5 per cent stock.

All three dividends will be payable Dec. 30 to stockholders of record Dec. 15.

Hancock Hunter Fatally Wounded

HANCOCK, Md. (AP)—A 25-year-old deer hunter was killed Wednesday, State Police said, when a companion shot at a moving bush.

The victim, Johnny Weller, of Hancock, was shot in the left side above the hip, police said.

Police said George H. Moore, of Halfway, told them he and Weller were hunting in a thicket near the Pennsylvania state line when he saw a bush move and fired. He then found Weller mortally wounded.

"OLDEST IN YEARS—NEWEST IN SERVICE"

Minor Leagues Adopt Free Agent Draft

Majors Expected To Follow Suit In Friday Vote

End To Cut-Throat Bidding Would Be Big Leap Forward

By MILTON RICHMAN
HOUSTON (UPI) — Baseball took the most progressive step in its long history Wednesday when the minor leagues unanimously passed the free agent draft and the majors gave every indication they will follow suit.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, who were the leading opponents to the plan patterned after pro football's draft, did a complete about-face and announced they also would vote for the measure on Friday after Wednesday's action by the minors.

"We'll simply have to learn to live with it," said Dodger Vice-President Buzzy Bavasi. "We were vehemently opposed to it but now we're in favor of it and will vote for it."

President Gabe Paul of the Cleveland Indians hailed the new draft as "the greatest thing that has happened to the game since the introduction of night baseball."

The Dodgers and Indians had argued heatedly over the measure until it was introduced by Lee MacPhail of the Baltimore Orioles, but Bavasi and Paul shook hands amicably following the vote by the minors.

The American and National Leagues each will vote individually on the proposal Thursday and it undoubtedly will become part of baseball law at their joint meeting on Friday. If passed, the free agent draft will go into effect immediately.

Baseball men generally agreed the new measure would mean the end of cut-throat bidding for young prospects and go a long way toward diminishing the payment of excessive bonuses.

Under the plan, three separate drafts would be held each year.

All college, high school and sandlot players would be lumped together and each major league club would be permitted to select one player at each draft session. The player then would be committed to negotiate only with the particular club which claimed him.

If he refused to do so, he would be placed in a special category for six months and then become eligible to be drafted by another club after that period.

Legal Question
Originally, some officials, including Dodger owner Walter O'Malley, had questioned the legality of the free agent draft and wondered whether baseball might run afoul of the anti-trust laws if it was enacted, but there was no discussion on that point by the minors.

"We proceeded on the theory that since this legislation was sponsored by the majors, they naturally have explored all aspects of it and are satisfied as to its legality," said Phil Pilon, President of the minor leagues.

The radical new proposal calls for draft sessions to be held in January, June and October of each year.

"The January draft would be held for all those college and high school players scheduled to graduate in February," Pilon explained. "The June draft would cover the June graduates and the fall draft would take in American Legion players."

"Then there would be another special draft for those boys who failed to come to terms with the original club which selected them."

Last Will Be First
As in the case of pro football, the major league baseball clubs would select players in reverse order to their standings in the leagues. That means the last-place clubs in each league would have first crack at the selections.

Under terms of the measure, any team could immediately send a player to the minors without him counting against its roster after the team succeeded in signing the player.

The free agent draft would abolish the present first-year draft in which all bonus players signed are counted against the clubs which sign them.

BUDDLE ON FREE AGENT DRAFT—Buzzie Bavasi, left, general manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, chats with Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick, right, during the Minor League meeting as the vote was taken on the free agent draft. The free agent draft, if adopted by the Majors, will replace the first year player rule. Under the free agent plan, the draft would be similar to that used by the professional football and basketball teams. (AP Wirephoto)

Middies Win, 101-66, Over Western Maryland

Ralph Wilson Scores 16 Points Against Navy

By HERB THOMPSON
ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Navy, finding the range after a ragged start slaughtered Western Maryland 104-66 Wednesday in the basketball opener for both schools.

The Middies, who could hit on only 29 per cent of their shots in the first half, improved to 43.2 per cent with a later surge led by Gene Parchinski and Chris Reddington.

Navy trailed until Reddington put them in front 12-12 on a lay-up after eight minutes of play. Navy moved easily into a 40-22 halftime lead.

Parchinski led all scorers with 21 points. Reddington scored 15 and had 15 rebounds. Coach Ben Carnevale emptied whether or not they are optioned to the minors.

Under the rule in the books now, a player becomes subject to the regular draft if the club which signs him sends him to the minors and does not recall him after one season.

Rick Reichardt, the $200,000 bonus baby signed by the Los Angeles Angels last summer, illustrates a typical example of how the current rule works and he could be the last player to benefit under the old rules.

The Angels sent him to the minors last season but made sure to recall him last fall so he wouldn't have to stand the general draft.

Had Reichardt been claimed by the Angels under terms of the new first-year draft, he would have had to negotiate only with them and undoubtedly would not have gotten the sum he did for signing, since all 20 major league clubs were after his services.

Wednesday's action by the minors did not kill off trade talk completely among the major leaguers.

The Minnesota Twins and Baltimore Orioles admitted they were attempting to complete a three-player deal.

"Baltimore is very interested in (outfielder) Jimmie Hall," said Minnesota manager Sam Mele, "but hasn't been able to offer us the outfielder we would want to replace him."

The Orioles offered outfielder Jackie Brandt and second baseman Jerry Adair for the Twins' home run slugger, but Minnesota President Cal Griffith said his club would have to get more for Hall.

Brian Piccolo Player Of Year

Leading Scorer Lopsided ACC Pick

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Full-back Brian Piccolo of Wake Forest, described by his coach as "the most fantastic and greatest competitive player I have been associated with in my coaching career," is the overwhelming choice as the Player-of-the-Year in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The selection of the nation's leading scorer and rusher was announced Wednesday by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. Of the 81 association members voting, Piccolo was named on 78 ballots.

Bill Tate, who in his first season as Wake Forest coach directed the Deacons to a surprising 5-5 record and a 4-3 conference mark, said, "without him we wouldn't have been half as effective. I just can't praise him enough."

Piccolo scored 111 points and rushed for 1,044 yards to lead the nation and set ACC marks. His 17 touchdowns established a conference record.

At 5-11 and 198 pounds, Piccolo had speed to turn the corner to go along with his power. He was amazingly durable as he was the heavy duty ball carrier in each of 10 games, in some of which he carried the ball more than 30 times.

Arnold Palmer Has Bad Hand

Injury Hurts U.S. Chances For Cup

KAANAPALI, MAUI, Hawaii (AP) — Arnold Palmer turned up with an aching left hand Wednesday on the eve of the 12th International Canada Cup matches, and the world's golfing nomads took heart that there may be a chance of keeping the powerful American team from its fifth straight victory.

"I think I must have bruised a tendon or something," the 34-year-old Masters titleholder from Latrobe, Pa., said after his first practice round over the Kaanapali course. "I got some medicine for it, but it still pains when I hit the ball."

Palmer and his 24-year-old partner, Jack Nicklaus, tee off at 9 a.m. local time (2 p.m. EST) Thursday, leading off the four-day, 72-hole competition involving hand-picked two-man teams from 32 countries, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Colts Lead NFL Statistics

Figures Tell Story Of Team's Success

NEW YORK (AP) — Baltimore has the figures to back up its 11-game winning streak and its Western Conference title in the National Football League.

The Colts lead the league in total offense with 4,059 yards for 12 games and rank fourth in total defense, allowing 3,446 yards to the enemy.

Perhaps of even more importance to their winning effort is the all-important ball control figures. The Colts have lost the ball on fumbles only five times and have had their passes intercepted only six times. On defense they have recovered 16 opposition fumbles and intercepted 21 passes. This gives them a 37-11 edge or a plus of 26.

On the same basis, here is the way all the clubs in the league rate on ball control:

Baltimore plus 26, Washington plus 19, Green Bay plus 16, Cleveland plus 10, Minnesota plus four, Chicago plus one; St. Louis minus two; Detroit minus three, Philadelphia minus nine, Los Angeles minus nine, Dallas minus 10, Pittsburgh minus 10, New York minus 12, San Francisco minus 21.

West Virginia Deer Kill Is Below Normal

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The deer kill in West Virginia's 12-day season which opened Monday apparently is somewhat less than normal, according to preliminary reports reaching the State Department of Natural Resources here.

Game management officials attributed the reported decline to less than usual hunting "pressure" resulting from two main factors:

—A larger area of the state than usual is open to hunting, including many southern counties where deer hunting has not been allowed for years.

—This year's season is 12 days long, twice the normal length.

Chief Pete Samsell of the department's game division said that while the statewide picture indicates a below-average kill, reports from southern counties show "they're experiencing a very good kill."

"We already have reports of 35 to 40 kills in McDowell County, 35 in Boone and 20 in Raleigh," he said. "The department is under a great deal of pressure in the big northern counties like Randolph and Hardy is helped along by the fact that many southern West Virginia hunters can 'stay home' and hunt instead of having to travel far distances."

Much of the portion of the state south of U. S. 60, from Huntington through Charleston to White Sulphur Springs, is open for the first time in years, although only for six days.

Samsell noted that 6,700 deer were killed statewide in last year's six day season and said the figure is expected to be equalled or exceeded this year.

Small College Crown Goes To L.A. State

Unbeaten Diablos Nip Wittenberg

By CURT BLOCK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Los Angeles State, the biggest little team in the land, was named national small college football champion for 1964 Wednesday by the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The Diablos earned their number one rating by virtue of a perfect 9-0 record, an offense that surpassed the 30 point mark more often than not and a defense that allowed an average of only seven points per game.

The Wittenberg Tigers, unbeaten in their last 30 games and 8-0 in '64, finished second in the balloting as L.A. State held a 26 to seven advantage in first place votes and 318-278 in total points.

With a student body larger than many schools (19,000) and a stadium for its home games bigger than most (the 100,000-seat Rose Bowl), the Diablos set about to run up scores of 55-6, 68-7, 62-20 and 62-6 on four of their last five opponents.

Beat S. D. State

Led by senior quarterback Dunn Marteen and coached by Homer Beatty, Los Angeles State lists among its victories a 7-0 blanking of San Diego State, the seventh ranked team and for most of the season the nation's highest scoring club.

Two of the finest eastern small college gridiron powers, Massachusetts and East Carolina, both 8-1, finished third and fourth, respectively, in close voting and will have an opportunity to settle any doubts when they face each other Dec. 12 at Orlando, Fla., in the 19th annual Tangerine Bowl.

County Deer Have Easy Day, Only 26 Slain

Where are all the deer hunters? That was the question being asked yesterday at this county's four checking stations, especially at Shipway's Garage, Green Ridge, where no kills were reported.

It was the first time in at least ten years that not a single deer slaying had been reported at the Green Ridge check point during a day of the deer season.

Returns were only slightly heavier at the other stations with 4 kills registered at Hess Service Station in Oldtown, 8 at Jake's Service Station in Westernport (3 of these from Garrett County), and the day's high of 17 at Maryland State Police Barracks in LaVale.

The total of 26 for the day brought the season number of kills in Allegany County to 697. The county deer have been getting off easier day by day since the season opened. The casualty list for Friday's opening day was 333, 246 Saturday, 56 Monday, and 36 Tuesday.

Statewide the deer kill is running way ahead of last year's results with more deer slain during the first three days than in the entire eight-day season of 1963.

The Game and Inland Fish Department reported Tuesday that kills through the first three days of the season which opened Friday, totaled 4,618, compared with 3,806 for the entire 1963 season.

In Dorchester County alone, hunters reported 1,405 kills, including 711 bucks and 694 doe. A special authorization to kill does in Dorchester was granted by the department because of severe crop damage there by deer.

LaSalle Opens Basketball Season By Losing To Fort Ashby, 66-43

No Explorer Able To Score Above 9 Points

Ray Knotts Tallies Twenty For Lions, Myers Gets 14

LaSalle opened its 1964-65 basketball season last night at St. Peter & Paul's gym on a dismal note by losing to Fort Ashby in a Potomac Valley Conference game, 66-43.

Four Fort Ashby hit in double figures, led by Ray Knotts' 20 point effort, while no LaSalle player managed to tally higher than nine points, Spunk Perlozzo and Bobby Boyle tying for that honor.

In addition to Knotts' score of points, Bruce Myers had 14, Dick Kaufmann had 13, and Ronnie Sisk scored 11 for Quentin Sayers' Eagles.

LaSalle led only in the early moments of the game, as the visitors piled up a 15-7 lead at the end of the first quarter, 34-17 at intermission, and 47-33 at the three-quarter mark.

Jim Brannon, only returning letterman for George Geatz's eleventh season at the Explorer helm, could score only five points before fouling out of the contest. Sisk fouled out for Fort Ashby.

The Explorers actually had a 19-18 edge in field goals, but were outscored, 24 to 5, at the foul stripe in a game heavily marred by personal fouls.

LaSalle won the preliminary junior varsity game, 41-39, with Rick Scaletta scoring nine points and George Geatz scoring eight.

A LITTLE SHOWBOATING—"Showboat" Hall, talented Harlem Globetrotter pivot man and current laugh sensation, goes into one of his famous comic routines. Dean, Marker Spark Comeback

Alan Stockholm's Allegany Community College cagers picked up where they left off last season by beating Johnstown Junior College in a 92-91 spine-tangler last night at Johnstown, Pa.

The Trojans, who gained the area spotlight last season by posting an 18-4 mark, came roaring back after a 52-30 defeat on the strength of 33 second-half points by reserves Bill Dean and Bobby Marker.

Maryland Nips Penn State, 72-71

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—A 40-foot, one-hand push shot by junior Neil Brayton with four seconds to play climaxed a second half comeback by Maryland as the Terps opened their basketball season with a 72-71 victory over Penn State.

The lead had changed hands six times in the last six minutes and the Nittany Lions were holding a 71-70 lead after Ray Saunders made good on two shots from the free throw line. He had been fouled by Jay McMullen, Maryland's sophomore who led both teams in scoring with 26 points.

Showboat Hall Globetrotters' Super Star

Plays Here Dec. 12 At Allegany Gym

Most basketball players have "bad" nights, but Robert (Showboat) Hall, the inimitable clown prince of the great Harlem Globetrotters coming here to play the New York Nationals at Allegany gym Saturday, Dec. 12, says its well nigh impossible for him or any of his teammates to experience this.

Even with a schedule of nightly play covering more than 160 games, plus many more during the post-season.

"We have so many varieties going that if one isn't clicking we have another to offset it," is his explanation. "Every night doesn't go the same way. That's what makes it good for us. You do some things over and over. Then you will do something one night you won't do the rest of the season."

Bob, a great pivot man as well as an outstanding showman, one of the finest entertainers in all sports, has been with the Trotters since 1949. He first played with a farm club they had at the time, the Kansas City Stars, and then broke into the parent club's regular lineup in 1952. He has been an outstanding star ever since and is a favorite in many of the 87 countries the famed aggregation has played around the globe.

The 6 foot 2 inch athlete's dream of playing with the Globetrotters goes back to his boyhood days in Detroit where he attended Miller High School. He had been seeing the team play exhibitions since he was a youngster.

"I was recommended to owner Abe Saperstein by an ex-player, Gus Finney," Hall recalls. "I went to their office straight out of high school. I really never thought I would get a chance to play with this great team."

Hall was one of about 25 hopefuls who tried out for the Trotters in '49. About 18 were kept and farmed out to the minor league teams, among them Bob. Besides his fine play, his clever clowning ability was noted and he was soon tagged with the nickname of "Showboat" which has clung to him since.

He is regarded by many experts as the finest ball-handler in basketball.

The schedule of the Globetrotters is rigorous but Bob likes it. They play seven games a week, sometimes two in a day, in a season usually running from the last week in October until the following April. Included is considerable traveling, including the overseas jaunts all around the world.

Is it hard to keep up night after night?

Hall replies, "You know you have to do it. You have to put out at all times. That's the job regardless of how you feel. Sometimes you may not feel quite like playing but you'd better be ready to go when you hit that court."

Farm Team Baseball Began In '22

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF Associated Press Sports Writer

Chain store baseball was born 42 years ago in Fort Smith, Ark. Harry Wanderling, who was present, viewed the situation with mixed emotions. Mostly though, he was opposed.

Wanderling feels today that his hostility to the movement was justified, because, he explains, it ruined minor league baseball.

He owned McAlester of the Class D Western Association. He had brought his team to Fort Smith for a July 4 double-header and was invited to the conference.

Instigator of the plan was Branch Rickey, according to popular opinion. But Wanderling

Joe Burnside Scores 30 Points

Eck Miers' Keyser High School basketball team got the new season off on the right foot last night by defeating the Alumni, 69-64.

Joe Burnside, a junior guard, poured in 30 points to pace the Tornado attack, while Butch Daskal hit for 16 markers. For the old grads, Mills had 16 tallies and Gary Keedy had 14.

Miers' five led at every quarter interval as they had a 15-11 advantage at the first quarter pole, clung to a 31-27 halftime advantage, and eked out a 50-49 third-quarter margin.

Both teams scored 26 times from the floor, while the Tornado converted 17 of 25 foul attempts to the alumni's 12 of 16. Nobody fouled out of the contest.

says a man named Charley Barrett, chief scout for the St. Louis Cardinals, had the original idea.

At that meeting were Rickey, vice president of the Cardinals; Barrett; Blake Harper, the high sheriff at Fort Smith who owned part of the local club, and, of course, Wanderling, an observer. There also was a newspaperman but Wanderling forgets his name.

The Cardinals bought half the club and made it a link in a "farm system."

"The idea was to get a half interest if not complete control of clubs in Class D leagues," says Wanderling. "They would go into a town, advance some money to help the financially impeded club, then have the privilege of taking three players. They were getting players developed at little cost. They bought some clubs outright, but the main idea was to get control of a club to obtain players."

As Wanderling recalls, Harper was "run out of office by the Ku Klux Klan" and Rickey brought him to St. Louis as his concessions man. Harper also did a lot of scouting.

Wanderling says that the trouble with the farm system was that it took away home ownership, thus killed local interest. "Had it not been instituted, minor league baseball today would be twice as big," he asserts.

Wanderling, now 76 and in insurance in Dallas, organized the West Texas, Wisconsin State, Rio Grande Valley and East Texas Leagues, all Class D circuits.

Terps To Play Six ACC Teams In 1965

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Six Atlantic Coast Conference opponents and four outside foes are on the 1965 Maryland football schedule, released during the weekend.

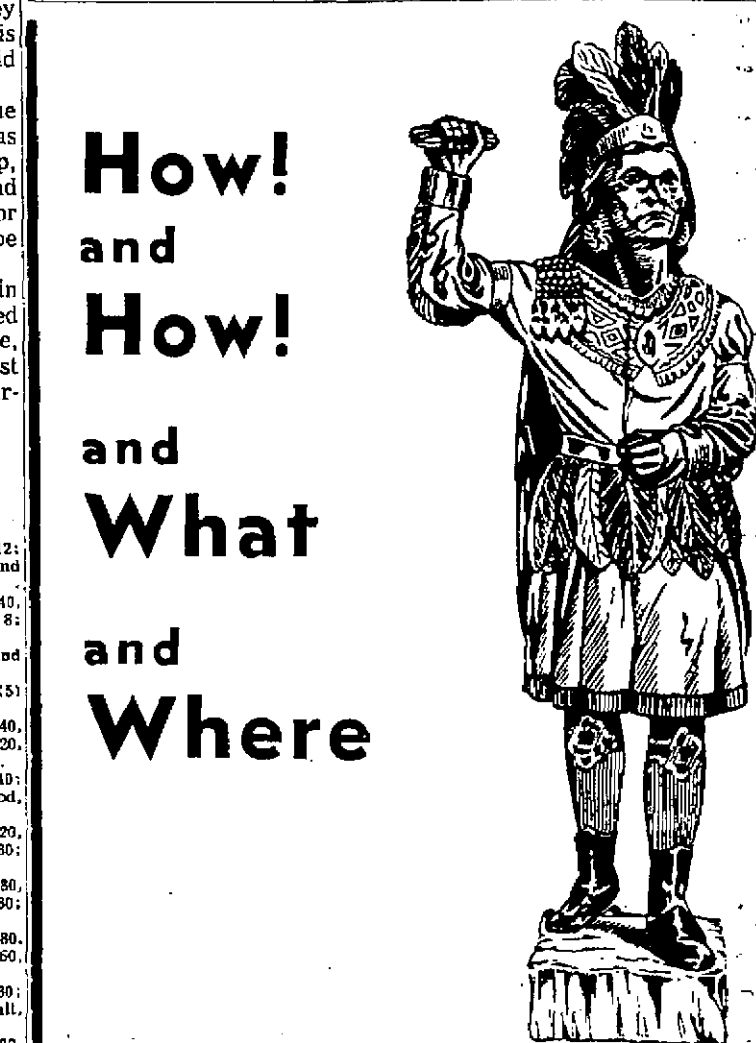

The non-conference games will be played against Penn State, Ohio University, Syracuse and Navy, with the Terps opening their season at home against Penn State on Sept. 18.

Ohio and Syracuse follow the Nittany Lions into Byrd Stadium before Maryland opens its ACC competition at Wake Forest. Other home games will be played against North Carolina State and Virginia. Duke is the only ACC team not on Maryland's 1965 card.

The schedule:
Oct. 2, Syracuse; 9, at Wake Forest; 16, at North Carolina; 23, N.C. State; 30, at South Carolina.
Nov. 6, at Navy; 13, at Clemson; 20, Virginia.

Wins Scoring Title
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mike Garrett, Southern California all-star halfback, is the 1964 scoring champion of the Pacific Athletic Conference—and he may wind up as the rushing champion, too.
With one game still to go, Garrett has scored 56 points, compared with 52 for Tom Blanchfield of California, who has completed his season.

Peace Meeting Between AAU And NCAA Appears To Be Off

Both Groups Want To Talk On Own Terms

By WILLIAM CLAYTON

HOUSTON (UPI)—The AAU has its idea about that "peace meeting" in Chicago and the USTFF has its idea, too, so guess what—there may be no meeting after all.

Prospects for a proposed peace talk in Chicago for Dec. 16 dimmed Wednesday. AAU executive director Don Hull said each group appears to want the talks to be on its own terms.

The AAU sent a telegram late Tuesday night to the Rev. Wilfred H. Crowley, President of the NCAA track and field arm, the USTFF. The telegram said the AAU "will be happy to meet with you Dec. 16 in Chicago." But there were two hitches.

The AAU wants some assurance the NCAA and USTFF will keep out of open-competition athletics and that the individual colleges will be able to tell their athletes when they can participate in meets without interference.

Touchy Subjects

Both conditions touch sensitive nerves in the AAU-NCAA battle that flared after a "truce" expired with the end of the Olympics.

Hull said the AAU would not go to any meeting that looked like it would be run by the NCAA merely to explain the NCAA position.

The AAU's Formulation Committee announced Wednesday it had approved an idea for a track triple meet between the United States and teams from Poland and Germany. The meet would start July 10-11 next year in Los Angeles and would be held every other year, alternating with the Russian-U.S. meet.

Hull said the meet would fill a gap in American athletes' training for the Olympics.

"The old habit of letting down after the Olympics and then coming up frantically in the last year is not a good way of keeping the U.S. on top," Hull said. He said the Poland-Germany-U.S. meet would help keep American athletes ready for the Olympic games. Only the details remained to be worked out, he said. The committee also approved the idea of exchanges in boxing and swimming, but those are still in the talking stage.

"What made the United States team was that we had a tremendous amount of international competition," Hull said.

The triple meet in track and field would have the national champions and runnersup of each country competing.

"This is the start of an effort to have a big international meet in the United States each year," Hull said. "In succeeding years, some other country might be chosen—whether it is a European power at the time."

Jurgensen In Comeback Bid

Regained Touch With Redskins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When the voters get around to thinking about the comeback of the year in the National Football League, a fellow named Sonny Jurgensen should attract some attention.

Traded to the Washington Redskins in the Philadelphia Eagles' general housecleaning last winter, Jurgensen has regained his old touch with the Redskins. A 54 per cent completion percentage, a league-leading 2,624 yards gained passing and a league leading total of 24 touchdown passes attest to his comeback.

Jurgensen earned designation as The Associated Press' Player of the Week by his performance Sunday when he threw four touchdown passes and completed 24 of 43 for 319 yards in a 36-21 victory over New York.

It was Jurgensen's third 300-plus day of the season and his second in succession.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Rangers have not won the Stanley Cup since 1939-40.

Redskins Sign Willie Adams

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP)—Linebacker Willie Adams of New Mexico State signed with the Washington Redskins of the National Football League Wednesday.

Redskin assistant coach and personnel director Frank Kilooy flew into Las Cruces for the signing.

Adams is a 6-foot-3, 220-pound linebacker from Corpus Christi, Tex., and was a junior college All-American in 1962 at Cameron State College, Okla.

Kilooy said the Redskins would choose.

Reverend Maguire Dies At Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, IND. (UPI)—The Rev. Joseph A. Maguire, 83, who was credited with persuading Knute Rockne to stay at the University of Notre Dame, died Tuesday night in Holy Cross House on the campus.

Father Maguire was the oldest priest in the Congregation of the Holy Cross, Indiana Province.

He was an eleventh round draft use Adams as a linebacker.

Butkus Will Sign With Chicago

The NFL locked up one of its major prizes when Illinois linebacker Dick Butkus agreed to sign with the Chicago Bears.

Butkus, a first round pick of the Bears taken on the second round by Denver in the AFL, told The Associated Press, "Yes, I definitely have decided to play for the Chicago Bears and will sign a contract with them."

Butkus will formally sign at a press conference Thursday.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Actor Dean Jagger, 61, was on an indefinite medical leave of absence Wednesday from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios and his role as principal in the "Mr. Novak" television series. Jagger was stricken last week with a recurrent ulcer ailment and physicians advised him to take a rest, a studio spokesman said yesterday.

Morgantown Sewage Plan Gets Okay

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — The State Department of Natural Resources announced Wednesday a permit has been issued for the construction of a sewage treatment plant on the right bank of the Monongahela River.

The permit, issued in early November, authorizes the municipality to construct the plant on the right bank of the Monongahela River.

Chief Bern Wright of the department's Water Resources Division said the permit was issued under the provision that it operation of the added facilities will not pollute the river.

James E. Baldwin, 24, reportedly offered no resistance to arresting officers.

He escaped from the Huttons-ville institution Nov. 24, where he was serving two 1-to-10 year sentences for breaking and entering from Kanawha County.

W. Va. Boy, 5, Dies Of Meningitis

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Meningitis, which developed from an unusual accident, has been cited as the cause of the death of a five-year-old Dunbar boy.

Kenneth Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ward, died Tuesday 30 hours after he fell while carrying a portion of an automobile radio antenna and it entered his nose and pierced the brain cavity.

Physicians began medication for the dreaded disease immediately but it proved ineffective. They feared meningitis from the first because the brain cavity was penetrated.

Two Boys Held In Fatal Shooting

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Two adolescent boys have been arrested here in connection with the shooting of a former Wheeling resident.

Police said Mrs. George W. Price, the former Olga Barbara Gantzer of Wheeling, was killed during a store holdup Monday. She was reportedly a bystander to the robbery and was hit by a stray bullet.

Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, president of Allegheny Community College, will speak at the dinner meeting of the South Cumberland Business and Civic Association next Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at Grace Methodist Fellowship Hall.

His subject will be "A Progress Report on Allegheny Community College".

Following the meeting a tour of the Luke mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company will be made.

Wesleyan Okayed

BUCKHANNON, W. Va. (UPI) — West Virginia Wesleyan College has been approved as a full institutional member of the National Association of Schools of Music, President Stanley H. Martin announced Wednesday. West Virginia University is the only other state institution now a member of the national accrediting agency.

Workshop Scheduled

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — West Virginia University will hold its fifth annual Recreation Administration Workshop Dec. 8-8 with an administrator for the U. S. Air force recreation program as featured consultant. He is N. G. Fletcher, who received a master's degree in recreation administration at WVU in 1956 and now serves at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton, Ohio.

Forestry Camp To Be Built In Garrett County

Occupancy Slated
By Next Summer

A fourth Forestry Camp for Boys in Western Maryland will be constructed on Backbone Mountain along Maryland Route 135 between Bloomington and Oakland on the site of an old Civilian Conservation Corps camp which dates back to the 1930s.

The announcement was made Tuesday afternoon during a quarterly luncheon meeting of the Advisory Board to the forestry camps which was held at the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

A spokesman said work on the new camp will begin as soon as possible and it is hoped to have it ready for occupancy by July 1 next year.

The Advisory Board will also seek in its future plans an additional camp for Allegany County. Several sites have been considered.

At present there are four camps including one in Green Ridge State Park east of Cumberland, Meadow Mountain west of Frostburg, near Lonaconing on Dan's Mountain and Victor Cullen State Hospital.

W. A. C. Irwin, district forester, a member of the board, said his report at the meeting said activities of the boys include timber stand improvement on some 100 acres of state forest land; road improvements in forest lands totaling about 30 miles; reforestation of nine acres of land with 9,000 pine seedlings.

Also cultural work on 80 acres of pine plantations; direct fire suppression on five fires which burned some 540 acres; participation in the maintenance of 12 miles of state forest boundary.

He pointed out that boys at Camp 4, a new camp at Victor Cullen State Hospital, participated in work on state parks including Gambrill, Cunningham Falls and Gothland.

The work included the clearing of hiking trails, clearing of proposed picnic areas, expansion of park picnic areas, clearing of play areas and landscaping park areas especially at Gothland.

One major construction project this summer was the building of a 30-foot steel stringer bridge over 15-Mile Creek in Green Ridge State Park.

The bridge was built through cooperation of the Allegany County Roads Department, which furnished engineering "know how" and supplies, three foremen of Green Ridge Camp and boys at the camp.

Others attending the meeting were Associate Judge Stuart F. Hamill, of Oakland chairman, Frank Powers, Frostburg, J. William Hunt, Cumberland, Mrs. Ralph Isminger, Cumberland, H. C. Buckingham, state forester, Jake Smedley, field supervisor for the State Department of Public Welfare, Robert Wolford, superintendent of boys camps, Edward O'Rourke, supervisor of social work services at the camps, Bryson Beal, business manager of the camps and Mr. Irwin.

COLLECTION DAY TODAY

Eight Stops Scheduled On Conservation Tour

Eight stops have been arranged on the conservation tour which a group of 51 John Humbird School students will take on December 17, according to Thomas M. Wagner, principal.

The students of Mrs. Robertine B. Murray and Mrs. Wilda M. Willis are studying conservation in a five-week program which will culminate with the trip in Guy Stonestreet's school bus on December 17 to the eastern end of Allegany County.

First stop will be at the farm of Richard M. Stegmaier on Williams Road at Everts Creek. There they will see cover crop, terrace soils and bottom soils. Next stop will be at the Consolidated Orchard, where the youngsters will be shown soil types, cover crop and thermabilt.

From there the bus will move on to Twiggstown, where guides

Getting Ready For Christmas

Westernport Man Injured In Accident

The manager of the A&P Supermarket at Westernport was hospitalized yesterday evening when he was injured in a two-vehicle accident at the intersection of Main and Washington streets in that community.

Kenneth H. Clary of 450 Spruce Street, was reported to have sustained a fractured left leg and a bruise above his eye, according to attaches at Potomac Valley Hospital in Keyser, who said he was in "satisfactory" condition last night.

Mr. Clary was reported to have been operating a scooter bike on Main Street when his bike and an auto collided at the Washington Street intersection about 5:05 p.m.

City policeman E. R. Saville said the operator of the auto was Joseph Jenkins, 51, of Westernport. He said no charges have been filed in the accident. State police were notified of the accident.

Mr. Clary was taken to the hospital in the Fredrick ambulance and was admitted to the hospital at 6 p.m.

Fatal Shooting Investigation Is Continuing

West Virginia authorities are investigating an apparent hunting accident yesterday in which a Wiley Ford youth was killed in the vicinity of the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

Dead is Robert Lee Rohrbough, 17, who had gone skunk hunting with a brother, Glenn E. Rohrbough, according to authorities who said the young man was shot in the back of the head by a charge from his brother's gun.

An investigation of the shooting is being continued by West Virginia State Trooper Robert B. Noeche and Keith Taylor, conservation officer.

A native of Cumberland, the victim was born November 19, 1947, a son of Claude E. and Dorothy (O'Dell) Rohrbough, Wiley Ford.

Besides his parents and brother, he is survived by another brother, Clarence E. Rohrbough, at home, and four half-sisters, Mrs. Regina Liller, Keyser; Mrs. Shirley Loy, Ridgeley; and Nina Lou and Norretta Sue Rohrbough, both of Wiley Ford.

The body is at the Scarpelli Funeral Home where services will be conducted Friday at 1:30 p.m. by Rev. Frank J. Fratto, pastor of Central Assembly of God Church. Interment will be in the Fort Ashby Cemetery.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home today from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

Firemen Called To Seek Youth

Volunteer firemen from Coriganville were called out last night when a 16-year-old youth was reported missing.

However, Albert Rizer, walked into his home about 9:15 p.m. apparently unaware the firemen had been looking for him.

Firemen said the youth had been walking alone above the Western Maryland Railway Company on Cash Valley Road. They were asked to search for the youth about 7:45 p.m. and some of the firemen were still out when the youth came home.

The siren was sounded in the community in an attempt to notify the firemen the youth was located.

Glenn Beall Jr. Outlines Plan For Appalachia

Social Workers Express Interest

Del. J. Glenn Beall Jr., Frostburg, minority floor leader of the Maryland House of Delegates, was guest speaker yesterday at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Allegany County Social-Welfare Workers Luncheon Group at Ali Ghan Shrine Club, with 40 representatives of various agencies attending.

Mr. Beall, introduced by Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt, spoke on Appalachia.

Explaining at the outset that there is some confusion in the minds of many people over President Johnson's "War on Poverty" bill and the Appalachia proposal, Del. Beall stated that they are separate and distinct programs. The "War on Poverty" is intended to embrace the entire country where the need for federal help exists. The Appalachia plan, he said, is a special program intended to lend federal encouragement to all or parts of 10 states.

The three westernmost counties of Maryland, along with neighboring West Virginia, a part of Virginia, Kentucky and other states where there has been slow advancement in recent years are included, he explained.

Touching on some of the statistics developed by state and federal sources in the "whole package," the speaker said that he, like many people, at first was a little offended that this area should be included. However, when the truth is brought to light, there is an underlying problem of economic and social illness here which this program can attack.

Employment in the area, percentage-wise, shows improvement, but there is a higher level of unemployment here than the national average and the rate would be higher if many people had not moved from the area, he noted.

There are 45 per cent more people on welfare roles in Western Maryland than the national average, he added, and the per capita income is below the national average.

Commenting on the Blooming-Dam, which can well become a part of this program, Mr. Beall said such a structure will open up the Potomac River valley from Cumberland through Keyser for a vast industrial complex.

This would free water in Savage River reservoir for domestic use down to Cresaptown through the Georges Creek Region, thus helping Cumberland, which is supplying a large area.

Proposed highways from Hancock to Morgantown, W. Va., would draw truck traffic from the Ohio River Valley through here to the port of Baltimore, thus creating jobs in service industry and other fields, he noted.

A proposed highway from Pennsylvania in the north, meeting the new highway at Cumberland, will bring still more business and industry into this area.

As he outlined the program he suggested that more and better highways opening up "locked-in" areas, along with the broader base for education and development of resources is a sensible attack on the economic ills of this vast region.

Mr. Beall said the federal government cannot do it all and the state and local governments must cooperate and must be willing to do their fair share. He said the federal government has already developed the study, developed a plan of attack, and as soon as Congress passes the Appalachia Bill—and he predicted this will be done early in the next Congress—then Maryland and Allegany County and the City of Cumberland must be ready to move and move quickly.

The next meeting will be held early in January.

Bedford Valley Woman Dies In Auto Accident

A 56-year-old Bedford Valley, Pa. woman was killed last night in a two-car accident about seven miles south of Bedford on U. S. Route 220.

The victim was identified as Mrs. Albert Cornell. Also involved in the accident was Amos Miller, about 75 of Bedford, driver of one of the cars. He apparently was not injured.

The accident occurred about 9:30 p. m. on a section of Route 220 where construction work is now in progress. Full details of the accident were not available late last night. Pennsylvania State Police are investigating.

Western Md. Official Backs Merger Plan

Would Not Hurt Any Rail Carrier

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Western Maryland railway official testified Wednesday he believes no rail carrier would be hurt by the proposed control of Western Maryland by two other railroads.

C. R. Zarfoss, Western Maryland vice president in charge of sales, testified in support of an application by the Baltimore & Ohio and the Chesapeake & Ohio railroads for stock control of Western Maryland.

"It is my opinion," Zarfoss said at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing, "that Baltimore & Ohio's exercise of stock control over Western Maryland, in conjunction with the Chesapeake & Ohio, cannot be detrimental to any other rail carrier."

"It can, however, confer important benefits on the applicants and Western," because of possibilities of savings through coordination of facilities, he added.

"These coordinations will reduce operating costs, enhance the long-range possibilities of rate stabilization or reduction to our shippers, and will increase operating efficiency, thus reducing to the immediate benefit of our shippers."

Zarfoss said he has assurance that the alphabet route, a fast freight service system between the eastern seaboard and mid-west, would be maintained in full vigor. A large part of Western Maryland's traffic moves on the alphabet route, so-called because of the numerous lines linked in the system.

Zarfoss said Western Maryland's primary competition today comes from trucks, pipelines, air carriers and inland waterways, rather than from other rail carriers. The railroad's share of intercity traffic has decreased from 73 per cent in 1930 to 43 per cent today, he added.

While Zarfoss was testifying, directors in Baltimore declared quarterly dividends on Western Maryland stock.

Nearly 15,000 Served Turkey In Cafeterias

Nearly 15,000 Thanksgiving turkey lunches were served on November 19 in the public school cafeterias of Allegany County, according to figures compiled in the office of Mrs. Gladys M. Eaton, county supervisor of cafeterias.

Figures reveal that 14,163 children and 707 adults, a total of 14,870 were served in the cafeterias on the Thursday before Thanksgiving. Last year, 13,581 children and 730 adults were served, a total of 14,311. The increase this year is 559.

A similar special luncheon will be served just before the Christmas holidays. They will start at 3:30 p.m. December 22.

Dr. Zimmerman Discusses Education Goals

About 70 Citizens Attend Dinner

Dr. David W. Zimmerman, deputy state superintendent of schools, told a group of some 70 supporters of public education in Allegany County, at a dinner meeting Tuesday night at the Cumberland Country Club that progress in a democratic society is dependent upon education.

To provide a good system of education, a county or city needs a staff of well-qualified administrators and teachers. It also is essential that this adequate staff be provided with up-to-date instructional materials.

Dr. Zimmerman congratulated Allegany County on the two newest school construction projects. Accompanied by Ralph R. Webster, county superintendent of schools, Dr. Zimmerman visited both the new North End Junior High School off Holland Street and the new South End Junior High School being constructed on the Feeney farm near the intersection of Kent and Avondale avenues.

Joint Effort

The Tuesday night dinner meeting was a joint effort of the County PTA Council and the County Teachers Association. Mrs. Lester B. Reed, president of the PTA Council, was in charge of arrangements for the meeting. Attending were PTA leaders, members of the executive and legislative committees of the Teachers Association, most of the elementary and high school principals of the county, State Senator George R. Hughes Jr., members of the House of Delegates, members of the County Board of Education, Superintendent Webster and various supervisors in the school program.

Although the announced purpose of the meeting was to get a better understanding of the effect upon Allegany County education of the new state plan for financing public education, Dr. Zimmerman kept his remarks on a more general state-wide level.

Under this new financing plan approved by the General Assembly in Annapolis last winter, Allegany County figures to get an additional 61 teachers and supervisors. Although the new plan became effective July 1, school budgets for the 1964-65 school year already had been adopted by that time.

Mr. Webster told the dinner group that he expects to add between 45 and 60 additional teachers and supervisors in the 1965-66 school year.

The formula being used in this new financing plan is that state aid to each county is based on 45 professional persons for every 1,000 students enrolled in the system. Ninety-one per cent of the professional force must be teachers.

At the present time, Allegany County has about 725 teachers and staff members.

Allegany County teachers' salary schedule now is essentially the state minimum. It starts at $4,800 and reaches $7,000 in the 12th year. All 12 steps are state minimums under the present plan. Allegany County does have a 13th step in its schedule at $7,200 and about 60 per cent of the teachers of the county are in this experience level.

Allegany is one of eight Maryland counties which adhere to the minimum schedule between $4,800 and $7,000 in the 12th year of experience. On the $7,200 level in the 13th year of experience, this county is 16th among Maryland's 23 counties.

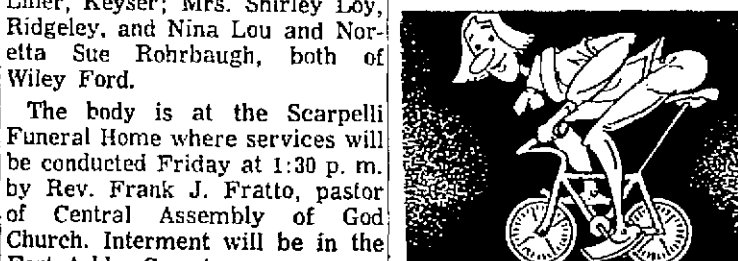

Both Washington and Frederick counties have teachers' salary schedules starting at $5,000 and reaching a maximum of $8,000 with a bachelor's degree. In Washington County the top level is reached in the 13th year while it takes 15 years to reach that point in Frederick County. A teacher in Washington County with a master's degree and 13 years of experience can receive a salary of $9,000. In this county a similar master's degree holder gets only $7,500.

Fifteen persons were seated at the head table for last night's dinner. They included Mrs. Reed, William E. Helmick, president of the County Teachers Association; Dr. Zimmerman, William L. Wilson, vice president of the State Board of Education and president of the Board of Trustees of State Colleges; Mr. and Mrs. Webster, County Commissioners Robert Little Ebert, Russell H. Carder and Louis V. Shinnamon, Senator Hughes, Delegates Charles M. See, David J. Williams, J. Glenn Beall Jr. and Noel Speir Cook and Mrs. Calvin S. Keiter, character and spiritual chairman for the County PTA Council.
